

Dem Leaders See Foreign Affairs As Top Election Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leading Democratic senators said today foreign affairs troubles may overshadow the Eisenhower record of the Republican Congress as a top issue in the November election campaign.

President Eisenhower centered on the at-home record in his broadcast to the nation last night, heaping praise on Congress and hitting again at "prophecies of doom."

While dwelling only briefly on foreign relations, he did predict they "will be the thing on which we must have to emphasize our efforts during the coming months."

Since the Republicans took office, he said, Korea, Iran, Suez and Guatemala are places "where great threats to our peace and security have already been removed."

But one Democratic senator, Russell of Georgia, senior minority member on the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the Republicans seemed to have changed their tune about Indochina.

He said Republicans were saying a few months ago that it might be necessary for the United States to send troops to Indochina. Now, he said, they are claiming that Eisenhower kept this country out of a shooting war there. Such a claim was made by Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, in a statement inserted in the Congressional Record.

While Republicans joined in praising the Administration's legislative accomplishments, such Democratic senators as Russell, Mansfield of Montana and Jackson of Washington said that the apparent collapse of the European Defense Community and what they called an unfavorable settlement in Indochina may claim the chief attention of American voters.

Mansfield, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the status of international relations this fall "may well be the deciding factor in the election."

Jackson said he thinks the Indochina settlement and indications that the EDC may never materialize "are creating skepticism in the minds of many voters about the administration's ability to hold the line against communism. The administration hasn't seized the initiative as it has claimed. It is the Soviet Union which has seized the initiative."

In his nationwide talk from Denver last night, Eisenhower told U. S. voters the Republican 83rd Congress chalked up a fine record toward assuring a stronger, better America. He urged them to remember that when they go to the polls in the November congressional elections.

He sounded an optimistic note about the security of Western Europe in the face of collapse of European defense army talks at Brussels.

"Don't be too discouraged," he said.

The great statesmen of Europe are his friends, he said, and "they want peace as much as you and I do."

"They are not licked yet," he said. "And we are certainly not licked. Let us not lose faith in them. There is still something to be done in that region, and we are going to do it."

The rest of the half-hour address was exclusively a plug for the administration and the record of the Congress which wound up Friday.

His warm praise for the GOP-controlled Congress, in which Republicans held only a slim majority over Democrats, dealt with an active legislation which he said would, for example, cut taxes by nearly $7½ billion, expand social security coverage and increase benefits, shift present rigid farm price supports to a system of flexible props, and provide new weapons to help defeat communism and subversion at home.

He said the White House went to bat 64 times in Congress in behalf of enactment of administration measures.

"Now, 54 of them were enacted into law," he added. "We did not always make home runs, but anyway we did have 54 hits. Some of them aren't quite all that we wanted, but that after all is a batting average of .830, and any baseball fan will tell you that is pretty good going in any league."

Youths Seek Clearer Guide On Times, Churchmen Told

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Delegates to the World Council of Churches Assembly today heard a poignant appeal from Germany for clearer church guidance on the riddle of modern times.

Young people, said Ernst Lange of Berlin, have no confidence "in all the political and social recipes of today, or in the persons and groups who offer them."

"They have the feeling that modern society is controlled by agencies and mechanism completely beyond their control and their understanding. They feel malinformed and somehow lost in the hugeness of the issues at stake."

"So they draw back into the problems of their own personal lives, trying to make a small success out of them in terms of work and family."

"What they need is certainly not paternalism, but rather the possibility of working with socially active and creative teams who do know what they want and how they want it and are not mysterious about it."

Turnpike Rate Schedule Studied

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Turnpike Commission today meets to discuss recommended tolls for the Northern Ohio Turnpike.

Suggested charges for the first 22 miles of the turnpike, due to open in September, will be divided into three sections, a turnpike spokesman said.

They include rates from the Pennsylvania border to Ohio 7, from Ohio 7 to Ohio 18 and from Ohio 18 to Ohio 18.

For autos and light panel trucks the suggested charge for the entire route is 30 cents. It would cost 25 cents to drive to Ohio 7.

For trucks with more than four axles the 22-mile drive would cost $1.90. Suggested toll for buses carrying 13 or more passengers the entire length would be 85 cents, the same charge for single three-axle trucks.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Democrats and a Republican senator voiced dismay today over the European Defense Community deadlock and said the United States may have to rearm West Germany.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) labeled the failure at Brussels to reach agreement on the six-nation European army project "a victory for the Soviet Union." If no EDC solution is found, he said, the German Federal Republic should be given sovereignty "as soon as practicable."

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said loss of Germany to Communist domination would be "catastrophic."

McCarthy Case Boiled Down To 5 Categories

Senate Probers Slated To Start Hearings On Next Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special Senate committee today announced five categories of charges on which it will start public hearings next Tuesday on the question of whether the Senate should censure Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), chairman of the bipartisan six member committee, said the charges seemed to be "the most important" of 46 filed by three senators who have urged that McCarthy's conduct be officially condemned.

He emphasized, however, that these did not preclude the committee from considering all the charges during the course of the public hearings, which will start Aug. 31, one day later than previously scheduled.

The five categories include:

1. "Incidents of contempt of the Senate or a senatorial committee" by McCarthy, centering around his failure to testify before a Senate elections subcommittee investigating his finances in 1950.

2. "INCIDENTS of encouragement of United States employees to violate the law and their oaths of office or executive orders" in McCarthy's appeal to federal employees to give him classified information about alleged Communists or subversives.

3. "Incidents involving receipt or use of confidential or classified documents or other confidential information, from executive files," in connection with his receipt of a purported summary of an FBI espionage report in the McCarthy-Armey hearings.

4. "Incidents involving alleged 'abuses' of other senators. Under this heading, the committee leveled at Sen. Hendrickson (R-

State Hearing Here Sept. 29 Likely To Spur Bypass Job

Preliminary work on the Route 23 bypass here should begin to gain momentum rapidly after the end of next month, a spokesman for the State Highways Department announced Tuesday.

R. N. Ricketts, engineer in charge of location and design for the department's Division Six, said a public hearing on the project will be held in Circleville Sept. 29. He said the meeting is regarded merely as routine compliance with the law since the city and county are both officially on record in favor of the highway change.

The bypass job will take Route 23 off Court street and loop it around the western side of the community. Controversy over the state's proposal lasted for more than two years before the city granted "detachment."

A short time later the county gave formal sanction for the city's action, which will "pull back" a section of the city's western limits to clear a zone for the bypass.

THUS THE dispute over actual acceptance of the state plan is considered to have reached its climax with joint city-county approval. But Ricketts explained the state is required to hold the hearing anyway.

In the case of many other projects, he pointed out, the issues at stake could still hang in the balance until the state called a hearing to settle details.

American Airline Truce Declared

WASHINGTON (AP)—American Airlines planes take to the air at midnight tonight for the first time in 25 days under a "truce" agreement between the company and its pilots, who struck over flying longer than eight hours at a stretch.

The union has demanded that the westbound flights be broken with a stopover and crew change. Eastbound transcontinental flights usually take less than eight hours because of prevailing winds.

The announcement last night said the pilots had agreed to continue flying nonstop westbound cross-continent flights over eight hours without crew change while the dispute is studied.

Sea Combed For Trace Of Lost Airliner

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP)—Search crews combed the stormy North Sea today for traces of a Dutch airliner which disappeared en route from New York with 21 or more persons aboard. So far only bits of wreckage and a child's body had been found.

The body, taken from the sea by a Dutch coast guard boat, was tentatively identified as one of the 5-year-old twin sons accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Yarrow of Woodbury, Conn., on the flight yesterday to Europe. KLM officials said they had not yet established which of the two boys it was, Richard or Peter Yarrow.

The only other evidences of the crash site off the Dutch coast were a few charred packages and papers and two small cushions carrying the KLM insignia of the Royal Dutch Air Lines.

A Dutch naval plane and a fleet of rescue ships criss-crossed the North Sea where the body and a few items were found but could see nothing more, KLM announced.

Other crews maintained a watch on the beaches. The Dutch navy said it was considering bringing in its underwater sounding devices in an attempt to locate the wreckage.

The plane, a Douglas DC6B, had last been reported only 20 miles out of Amsterdam when radio contact was lost.

The air line's Amsterdam office said 12 passengers, most of them Americans, and 9 crew members were aboard but KLM's New York office said two more passengers boarded the craft in Ireland.

Motorman Loses Foot In Mishap

NEW YORK (AP)—Motorman David Moclair, 52, spent seven agonized hours trapped in the wrecked cab of a subway train yesterday. Both legs were crushed and he was finally freed last night after one foot was amputated.

Moclair's empty train ran into a cement wall after a tripping device apparently failed and let it smash through a bumping block at the end of the track.

Rescue workers first used acetylene torches to cut through to Moclair, but the heat became unbearable for him and they turned to saws, which slowed progress. He could move only one hand, but this enabled him to handle drinks of water. Doctors on the scene gave him drugs to ease his pain.

Ricketts pointed out that the state is already in favor of the bypass.

The project involves relocation of Route 23 north and south of Circleville, and Ricketts said these changes will also be covered at the meeting held in Circleville. The long controversy over the location of the bypass in Circleville has overshadowed plans for highway changes north and south of the city.

ON SPET. 1, Ricketts will take over a new job as field engineer with the highways branch. Much of the success of the bypass proposal here has been attributed to his efforts, and the job will be in one of the areas under his supervision as field engineer.

Ricketts will be succeeded at the Delaware divisional offices by Milo Richey.

U.S. Delegate Votes OK To Red Chinese

BERN, Switzerland (AP)—With the United States delegate voting in favor, the Congress of the International Amateur Athletic Federation today unanimously recognized Red China as a full member.

The voting was by a show of hands after a short discussion during which Soviet Russia's delegates and Lord Bury of Britain spoke for the recognition.

Dan Ferris of New York, casting a vote for the United States' Amateur Athletic Union, voted in favor of recognizing the Communist-aligned Chinese and said:

"No valid reason was given me for not voting to recognize this group. No Chinese group was recognized until today—Chinese from Formosa or Red China."

"China should be represented in the IAAF. No one brought forward the Formosan angle."

The IAAF, however, rejected East Germany's bid for membership by an overwhelming majority. The only votes in favor of East Germany were those from the Soviet bloc.

These actions closely paralleled those taken in Athens, Greece, in May when the International Olympic Committee admitted China but rejected East Germany.

Lima Woman, 54, Granddaughter Die

ASHLAND (AP)—A Lima woman and her granddaughter were killed last night in a three-car collision at nearby Hayesville.

Herman M. Gunn, Ashland County coroner, who apparently suffered a heart attack while investigating the accident, died a short time later.

Dead in the crash were Mrs. Mary J. Jarvis, 54, and her granddaughter, Mary Jo Jarvis, 13.

Six other persons, including another granddaughter, Dixie Jarvis, 14, suffered injuries.

Sheriff Frank Topper said Mrs. Jarvis lost control of her car when it hit high beam along U. S. 30. The car collided head-on with an oncoming auto and then was hit from the rear by a third.

58 Generals Force Vargas To Quit Post

Iron Man For 19 Years Fires Bullet In Heart As Military Takes Over

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil's iron man for 19 years, Getulio Vargas, fired a bullet through his heart and died in his palace today after 58 generals forced him to quit as president.

"To the wrath of my enemies I leave the legacy of my death," said a note left by the 71-year-old chief of the world's fourth largest country. "I take the sorrow of not being able to give to the humble all that I wished."

Vargas stepped down from the presidency at dawn and shot himself in his quarters at Catete Palace, the Brazilian White House. Gen. Caio de Castro, chief of his military staff, was with him. Police said Vargas suddenly whipped a pistol from his pocket and shot, dying almost immediately.

He thus fulfilled a promise he had made Sunday night—that he would leave office only under arrest or dead. That was after 26 general officers of the air force asked him to resign to calm a tense political and military situation. Today 32 general officers of the army joined in the demand for Vargas' ouster.

THE ARMY officers' petition was presented to Vargas this morning at Catete Palace. It was announced the president, who came to power in 1930 and ruled all but five years since then, had agreed to ask congress for a leave of absence. Four hours later he was dead.

This situation arose at a time Brazil was undergoing severe economic stress. Last week the price of coffee was forced down, in terms of American dollars, and there have been predictions of new blows against Brazil's currency.

The air force, with Vargas' permission, obtained the personal papers of Gregorio Fortunato, husky former head of the dis-

Farm Machinery Slated For Fair

COLUMBUS (AP)—There will be plenty of farm machinery on display at the Ohio State Fair this year, exposition officials say.

The machinery display probably will be as big as last year despite decision of the Columbus Tractor Club, composed of farm machinery distributors, to concentrate on county fairs rather than on the state fair this year.

The Ohio State Fair opens Friday and continues through Sept. 3. In addition to the many displays of new farm equipment, farmers will have an opportunity to compare modern equipment with that of the past. An antique farm equipment show sponsored by the Ohio Historical Society will be held with all this equipment dated prior to 1925.

Dem Leaders See Foreign Affairs As Top Election Issue

WASHINGTON (P) — Leading Democratic senators said today foreign affairs troubles may overshadow the Eisenhower-paired record of the Republican Congress as a top issue in the November election campaign.

President Eisenhower centered on the at-home record in his broadcast to the nation last night, heaping praise on Congress and hitting again at "prophecies of doom."

Youths Seek Clearer Guide On Times, Churchmen Told

EVANSTON, Ill. (P)—Delegates to the World Council of Churches Assembly today heard a poignant appeal from a Christian youth leader from Germany for clearer church guidance on the riddles of modern times.

Young people, said Ernst Lange of Berlin, have no confidence "in all the political and social recipes of today, or in the persons and groups who offer them."

"They have the feeling that modern society is controlled by agencies and mechanism completely beyond their control and their understanding. They feel malinformed and somehow lost in the hugeness of the issues at stake."

"What they need is certainly not paternalism, but rather the possibility of working with socially active and creative teams who do know what they want and how they want it and are not mysterious about it."

"THERE IS some indication that many young people are looking to the churches for a possibility like that, even if they are not yet committed Christians."

Men who outnumber women 15-1 at the Assembly got a polite, but firm female suggestion: If they want real Christian unity, let more women in on it.

The gentle plea came from a French woman, who said women's church work is usually restricted to sisterhoods and societies—a "shadow church"—with little to do with the actual conduct of the church as a whole.

To get all Christians pulling together, said Miss Madeleine Barot, requires not just theological harmony but a "more complete integration of both sexes into the life of the church."

Unfortunately, she said, "the full cooperation of men and women in the service of Christ has not yet been achieved." She proposed formation of a "department of cooperation of men and women in church and society."

Her appeal came as the World Council of Churches Assembly, including delegates from 163 denominations in 48 nations, worked to set down a joint Christian assessment of current problems of man and his society.

In six conference rooms, with some 100 delegates in each, separate discussions went on in an atmosphere of mixed accents and views as the groups look for conclusions on these subjects:

International relations, evangelism, the Christian role of laymen, economic and political justice, racial issues, and Christian unity.

The sectional conferences will continue until late this week, before the first tentative reports are put before the assembly for action.

The bypass job will take Route 23 off Court street and loop it around the western side of the community. Controversy over the state's proposal lasted for more than two years before the city granted "detachment."

A short time later the county gave formal sanction for the city's action, which will "pull back" a section of the city's western limits to clear a zone for the bypass.

THUS the dispute over actual acceptance of the state plan is considered to have reached its climax with joint city-county approval. But Ricketts explained the state is required to hold the hearing anyway.

In the case of many other projects, he pointed out, the issues at stake could still hang in the balance until the state called a hearing to settle details.

"At any rate," he added, "we're required by law to hold a hearing on relocation projects, when a declaration of limited access is involved."

The hearing will be open for those who favor the bypass and for those opposed. And then, after the hearing, the engineer will make his recommendation.

Ricketts pointed out that the state is already in favor of the bypass.

The project involves relocation of Route 23 north and south of Circleville, and Ricketts said these changes will also be covered at the meeting held in Circleville. The long controversy over the location of the bypass in Circleville has overshadowed plans for highway changes north and south of the city.

ON SPET. 1, Ricketts will take over a new job as field engineer with the highways branch. Much of the success of the bypass proposal here has been attributed to his efforts, and the job will be in one of the areas under his supervision as field engineer.

Ricketts will be succeeded at the Delaware divisional offices by Milo Richey.

Ricketts said much of the new highway being planned between Columbus and Chillicothe, and (Continued on Page Two)

Sea Combed For Trace Of Lost Airliner

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (P)—Search crews combed the stormy North Sea today for traces of a Dutch airliner which disappeared en route from New York with 21 or more persons aboard. So far only bits of wreckage and a child's body had been found.

The body, taken from the sea by a Dutch coast guard boat, was tentatively identified as one of the 5-year-old twin sons accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Yarrow of Woodbury, Conn., on the flight yesterday to Europe. KLM officials said they had not yet established which of the two boys it was, Richard or Peter Yarrow.

The only other evidences of the crash site off the Dutch coast were a few charred packages and papers and two small cushions carrying the KLM insignia of the Royal Dutch Air Lines.

A Dutch naval plane and a fleet of rescue ships criss-crossed the North Sea where the body and a few items were found but could see nothing more, KLM announced.

Other crews maintained a watch on the beaches. The Dutch navy said it was considering bringing in its underwater sounding devices in an attempt to locate the wreckage.

The plane, a Douglas DC6B, had last been reported 20 miles out of Amsterdam when radio contact was lost.

The air line's Amsterdam office said 12 passengers, most of them Americans, and 9 crew members were aboard but KLM's New York office said two more passengers boarded the craft in Ireland.

58 Generals Force Vargas To Quit Post

Iron Man For 19 Years Fires Bullet In Heart As Military Takes Over

RIO DE JANEIRO (P)—Brazil's iron man for 19 years, Getulio Vargas, fired a bullet through his heart and died in his palace today after 58 generals forced him to quit as president.

"To the wrath of my enemies I leave the legacy of my death," said a note left by the 71-year-old chief of the world's fourth largest country. "I take the sorrow of not being able to give to the humble all that I wished."

Vargas stepped down from the presidency at dawn and shot himself in his quarters at Catete Palace, the Brazilian White House. Gen. Caetano de Castro, chief of his military staff, was with him. Police said Vargas suddenly whipped a pistol from his pocket and shot, dying almost immediately.

He thus fulfilled a promise he had made Sunday night—that he would leave office only under arrest or dead. That was after 26 general officers of the air force asked him to resign to calm a tense political and military situation. Today 32 general officers of the army joined in the demand for Vargas' ouster.

THE ARMY officers' petition was presented to Vargas this morning at Catete Palace. It was announced the president, who came to power in 1930 and ruled all but five years since then, had agreed to ask congress for a leave of absence. Four hours later he was dead.

This situation arose at a time Brazil was undergoing severe economic stress. Last week the price of coffee was forced down, in terms of American dollars, and there have been predictions of new blows against Brazil's currency.

The air force, with Vargas' permission, obtained the personal papers of Gregorio Fortunato, husky former head of the dis-

U.S. Delegate Votes OK To Red Chinese

BERN, Switzerland (P)—With the United States delegate voting in favor, the Congress of the International Amateur Athletic Federation today unanimously recognized Red China as a full member.

The voting was by a show of hands after a short discussion during which Soviet Russia's delegates and Lord Burghley of Britain spoke for the recognition.

Dan Ferris of New York, casting a vote for the United States Amateur Athletic Union, voted in favor of recognizing the Communist-aligned Chinese and said:

"No valid reason was given me for not voting to recognize this group. No Chinese group was recognized until today—Chinese from Formosa or Red China."

"China should be represented in the IAAF. No one brought forward the Formosan angle."

The IAAF, however, rejected East Germany's bid for membership by an overwhelming majority. The only votes in favor of East Germany were those from the Soviet bloc.

These actions closely paralleled those taken in Athens, Greece, in May when the International Olympic Committee admitted China but rejected East Germany.

Lima Woman, 54, Granddaughter Die

ASHLAND (P)—A Lima woman and her granddaughter were killed last night in a three-car collision at nearby Hayesville.

Herman M. Gunn, Ashland County coroner, who apparently suffered a heart attack while investigating the accident, died a short time later.

Dead in the crash were Mrs. Mary J. Jarvis, 54, and her granddaughter, Mary Jo Jarvis, 13.

Six other persons, including another granddaughter, Dixie Jarvis, 14, suffered injuries.

Sheriff Frank Topper said Mrs. Jarvis lost control of her car when it hit high berm along U. S. 30. The car collided head-on with an oncoming auto and then was hit from the rear by a third.

Senators Claim Rearming Of Germany By U. S. Near

WASHINGTON (P) — Two Democrats and a Republican senator voiced dismay today over the European Defense Community deadlock and said the United States may have to rearm West Germany.

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont) labeled the failure at Brussels to reach agreement on the six-nation European army project "a victory for the Soviet Union." If no EDC solution is found, he said, the German Federal Republic should be given sovereignty "as soon as practicable."

Sen. Russell (D-Ga) said loss of Germany to Communist domination would be "catastrophic."

"Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) said an EDC collapse would mean the United States should "by all means" move to rearm the enemy which faced Americans in two world wars.

State Department Press officer Henry Suydam said yesterday the department will want to study "the whole picture" before commenting on the Brussels collapse.

President Eisenhower in his broadcast to the nation last night discounted what he termed "gloomy predictions about Europe" as the result of the Brussels stalemate.

"There is still something to be done in that region, and we are going to do it," he said. He did not specify what this might be.

Washington officials were reported searching desperately for some formula to salvage the multinational project, although most acknowledged privately they had little hope of success.

If compromise attempts fail, it was said the United States and Britain were ready to go ahead with plans to end their occupation of Germany and restore sovereignty in line with a plan agreed on between President Eisenhower and (Continued on Page Two)

Dulles Extends Protection Line

Islands Off Formosa Slated For U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today American forces would be justified in defending some Nationalist-held islands between Formosa and the Chinese mainland from any Communist attack.

Dulles told a news conference it would be up to American military leaders to decide which islands in addition to Formosa they want to defend as part of their overall strategy for aiding the Chinese Nationalist stronghold.

Dulles spoke up in the face of talk by Peiping of "liberating" the island of Formosa, now held by Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese Nationalists. U.S. leaders have been inclined to discount the Peiping talk.

President Eisenhower already is on record as saying the U. S. 7th Fleet would protect Formosa from a Red attack. Dulles appeared to be extending this line of reasoning by including some of the smaller Chiang-held islands near Formosa.

IN TALKING about Europe, Dulles told newsmen he deeply regrets France's unwillingness to agree with five other Western European countries on the European army plan. But he said he has not given up hope France will ratify the European Army agreement when "it confronts the ultimate decision."

Dulles said he "still can hope" that France "will follow her great tradition" of idealism and approve the European Army proposal.

But he added this hope is not the same as expectation. Dulles' comments were made in response to questions concerning the failure of the recent Brussels conference to reach agreement on changes proposed by France in the European Defense Community Treaty.

U.S. Spending Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Commerce Department says American military spending abroad, not counting direct foreign aid, gave friendly foreign countries an economic lift to the tune of $2½ billion last year, compared with a little less than $2 billion in 1952.

Claim Rearming Of Germany By U.S. Near

British Prime Minister Churchill here last July.

Meanwhile, in Paris, French Premier Pierre Mendes-France wrestled anew with the European army crisis as a cross fire of demands mounted in his own country for acceptance or rejection of the controversial six-nation defense treaty.

Mendes-France flew back to meet his Cabinet today after a hurried conference in Britain yesterday with Churchill.

The premier reported last night to French President Rene Coty in the Normandy resort of Bagnole de L'Orne, filling the president in on his secret talk with Churchill and his failure at the six-nation Brussels conference to get approval of the sweeping revisions he demanded in the European Defense Community pact.

If Churchill and Mendes-France decided upon any alternative to EDC during their talk yesterday, it was a top diplomatic secret. After the four-hour meeting, they announced only that they had agreed to "early and practical steps" to maintain Western unity.

Official sources disclosed they reviewed all possible alternatives for rearming West Germany and restoring full sovereignty to the Bonn government if EDC fails.

Facing Mendes-France was the grave decision on whether to try for another new set of modifications in the EDC treaty or let the French National Assembly begin a ratification debate, scheduled for Saturday, on the pact as is.

The premier himself had insisted that the modifications he demanded at Brussels were necessary to win French ratification. Some members of his Cabinet favor the pact as it stands, but others oppose it unless it is drastically altered. Whichever way the premier swings he is bound to lose support. There was some doubt among politicians today whether his Cabinet could survive the debate.

Gas, Humidity Kill 3 Workers

CLEVELAND (AP)—Firemen today blamed carbon monoxide gas and high humidity for an industrial accident which killed three men and nearly asphyxiated 10 others yesterday at the American Steel & Wire Co.

Firemen said a pocket of the deadly gas had accumulated in a blast furnace and poured out when firemen opened a door of a gas washer chamber connected to the furnace. The wet, heavy air prevalent yesterday prevented the gas from dissipating quickly in the atmosphere. The three who died were attempting to save two men who opened the door.

Clarksburg Motorist Given Fine As Result Of Two-Car Accident

As the result of an accident in which a passenger in his car and another woman were injured, Harry Cole, 62, of Clarksburg was fined by acting Municipal Judge Emmitt Crist for failure to have assured clear distance ahead.

Cole was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Dwight Radcliff after the accident Sunday afternoon. The two-car collision took place on Route 22 just west of the city limits. The fine was $10 and costs.

Nellie Cole received a deep laceration of her right forearm. Ellen Wheatcraft, 32, a passenger in the second car, received a laceration on the top of her head.

Cole's car ran into the rear of an auto driven by Cleo S. Wheatcraft, of Radnor Route 1, according to the deputy's report.

Friberg said the older boy took all the blame after authorities determined the 12-year-old was home at the time of the slaying.

Kaiser Aluminum Report Awaited

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Official announcement is expected tomorrow of the establishment of two Kaiser aluminum fabricating plants at Willow Grove.

Both plants, to be situated on more than 2,500 acres of land, will cost a total of about $67 million under terms of certificates of necessity issued by the Office of Defense Mobilization. Permanent operating personnel is expected to total about 2,500 workers. The same figure will be employed during the construction which will extend over a period of more than a year.

Bender Says GOP Holds Future Fate

CANTON (AP)—Congressman George Bender said today the Nov. 2 election "may well decide the fate of the next generation."

Bender said he was not exaggerating when he stressed the importance to the next generation of retaining a Republican Congress behind President Eisenhower, whom he called "the most effective fighter we have in this conflict" against the Communists.

Bender, the Republican nominee, seeks the U. S. Senate seat now held by Thomas A. Burke, a Democrat.

Circleville Among Fifteen Corps To Compete At Ohio State Fair

Circleville's American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will be among 15 units to compete Sunday at the Ohio State Fair in Columbus.

First prize will be $600; second, $500; third, $400; fourth, $300; fifth, $250; the next five positions will each receive $200.

Also, four drill teams will display their sharpness. They are: Wauson American Legion Post 265; Wellsville Legion Post 70; Alliance Veterans of Foreign Wars VFW Post 6770.

Circleville, Marion's "Cavaliers", Bellefontaine's "Satans Angels", the "White Clefs" of Dover, Dayton's "Thunder Jets" and the Springfield VFW Drum and Bugle Corps will begin the first round of competition, starting at 11 a. m.

THE SECOND ROUND, comprising the rest of the corps, will start shortly after the first round is completed. All competition is expected to be over at 5:30 p. m.

"Satans Angels" took all the top prizes at the "Colorama of Music" held at Circleville Sunday. They were Ohio state champions in 1953 and missed the 1954 title by 2 of a point at Cincinnati recently.

One of the top exhibitions is expected from the famed Pittsburgh "Rockets". Also, highly represented Massillon will show why they were the 1954 state champs.

The "Comets", of Portland, Ind., will be a top favorite. The 1954 Indiana state titlists came in second to Bellefontaine at the "Colorama."

Other corps will include the following: the "Gailey Grenadiers," ard; $10 and costs for crossing a yellow line; arrested by Green.

Johnny King, 30, of Detroit, Mich.; $10 and costs for no valid operator's license; arrested by Officer Charles Smith.

Bernice Rader, 41, of Circleville; $10 and costs for crossing a yellow line; arrested by Smith.

Harold V. Lloyd, 22, of Brooksville; $5 and costs for a faulty car muffler; arrested by Smith.

William L. Zonker, 43, of Fairborn; $15 and costs for speeding at 65; arrested by State Patrolman Warren O. Fogle.

New Light Shields Await Installation

City Safety Director Oscar Root said Tuesday the city has received at least one set of anti-glare shields for traffic lights, urged here as an aid for motorists looking into the sun to read the crossing light signals.

Root said the shields arrived "a week or two ago," and that they are waiting to be installed by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

City policemen have warned that the lights at some intersections are so difficult to see, when the sun is low, that they constitute a serious traffic hazard.

Root indicated he did not know how soon the shields would be installed, but said they would probably be tried first on the light at Pickaway and Main or the one at Pickaway and Franklin streets.

Extended Five-Day Weather Forecast

Temperatures through Sunday will average 5 to 7 degrees above the seasonal normal. Continued warm and humid except for brief cooling in northern section Friday. Normal low 58-60; normal high 79-83. Daily chance of thunderstorms in afternoon or evening will net one-half inch moisture or less, being most likely Thursday afternoon.

Woman Banker's Trial Scheduled

FRONTON (AP)—The trial of Mrs. Fronia Sexton, 62, accused of embezzling $114,000 while president of the Citizens National Bank here, will start Saturday in U. S. District Court in Cincinnati.

She waived a federal grand jury hearing after being freed on $5,000 bond. Mrs. Sexton was publisher of the Ironton Courier, which ceased publication after the charges were brought against her.

Annie Moss Again Denies Ties To Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Annie Lee Moss, again denying Communist ties, has asked the Army to produce her accusers at a security screening board hearing.

"I am not a Communist, have never been a Communist and have no communistic leanings or sympathies," the Negro woman said in a notarized reply yesterday to the latest charges.

The Army suspended Mrs. Moss for a second time Aug. 4 from a job with the Army Signal Corps. It said it acted "on the basis of information which was not previously available."

Mrs. Moss was temporarily suspended last spring from her $3,355-a-year position after Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) brought up her name at an investigation of alleged Communists in the Army. She denied before McCarthy's Senate Investigations subcommittee that she was the Annie Lee Moss an FBI undercover worker had testified was known as a Communist. The undercover worker failed to identify Mrs. Moss by sight.

After reinstating her, the Army suspended her again on charges she was issued a Communist party membership book in 1943 and on other counts similar to those she previously denied.

In denying the Communist book charge, Mrs. Moss said in papers filed by her attorney:

"No time or place is given with regard to this alleged transaction, nor is there any suggestion as to the person with whom the transaction was made. It is my earnest desire that the author or authors of this information be produced in order that I be given an opportunity to vindicate myself."

points still further south, will have a dividing "parkway" 40 feet wide. On each side of this dividing section will be the two lanes for traffic, each 24 feet wide.

Width of the "parkway" between the traffic lanes, however, will vary greatly at different points in the route. In passing through the vicinity of Circleville, the lanes will have a separation strip 16 feet in width.

And at the point north of the city where the new highway crosses over railroad tracks, the dividing area will be only four feet wide. At South Bloomfield, the width will be two feet.

McCarthy Case Boiled Down To 5 Categories

N.J.) and other members of the Senate subcommittee that investigated his financial affairs.

5. The charge that McCarthy abused Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker, commanding officer at Camp Kilmer, N. J.

McCarthy's questioning of Zwicker last February brought a vigorous protest from Army Secretary Stevens and was one of the incidents that touched off the televised McCarthy-Army hearings.

Watkins heads the special group named by the Senate to report on a resolution of censure offered by Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) Flanders and Senators Fulbright (D-Ark.) and Morse (Ind-Ore.) had filed a list of 46 specific charges ranging from McCarthy's financial affairs to accusations that he ridiculed fellow senators.

THE SIX-MAN committee plans to start hearings the same day the Senate investigations subcommittee has set as a deadline for its report on the McCarthy-Army row. Sen. Mundt (R-SD), who presided during the 36 days of hearings on misconduct charges McCarthy and top Army officials had flung at one another, announced yesterday the four Republican members had reached agreement on language of a majority report of findings.

The New York Times said today the majority report of the four Republican senators was "said to be mildly critical of both sides in the Army-McCarthy controversy."

A Washington dispatch to the Times quoted well-informed sources as saying "the successful maneuver" to force the post-hearing resignation of Roy M. Cohn as chief counsel to McCarthy's investigating subcommittee played a part in bringing the Republicans together on their final decision.

Farm Fences Knocked Down By Two Autos

For the second time over the past weekend, an unidentified automobile tore down some farm fence on Route 56 and got away before authorities arrived.

Frank Bowling, of Circleville Route 2, reported to Deputy Sheriff Dwight Radcliff that a car tore down 174 feet of fence on his property on the north side of the highway.

Bowling said he heard the car make three tries at getting out of a ditch after hitting the fence. The car made it on the third attempt, he told the deputy.

Two mud flaps and pieces of glass from a headlight that was evident, smashed in the incident were discovered by the deputy. He said the car evidently suffered heavy damage. The flaps and glass are important evidence, he pointed out.

Howard Lane reported to Deputy Sheriff Carl White that someone drove a car into his farm fence. He said the car left the scene before he could get there.

Churchmen's Advice On Policy Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham says U. S. foreign policy makers should ask advice from missionaries and churchmen in other countries when they want to know what people there are thinking about.

This should be done, Graham said yesterday, because the churchmen "are moving among the people where the diplomats do not go, and they can talk off the record in a way that our diplomats can't."

Graham said that on his recent tour of Europe "ministers told us everywhere that there was not much anti-American feeling."

Ike To Sign Bill Outlawing Red Party

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower today signs into law history-making legislation outlawing the Communist party and cracking down on Red-infiltrated labor unions.

The President's decision to approve the bill with its outlawing provisions, for which the administration did not ask, was announced by Press Secretary James C. Hagerty at Eisenhower's vacation headquarters here.

Administration doubts about the bill, revised before it passed to overcome a principal objection, were based on concern as to whether it would make "propaganda martyrs" of Reds in this country and drive them underground.

In his radio-television address last night on the record of the Republican 83rd Congress, Eisenhower did not disclose whether he would sign the bill. He did say the administration has had to forge "new weapons in order to defeat internal communism."

"The great thing we wanted to do was to find effective means of eliminating the Communist or the subversive from any point where he could possibly damage us, but to do it by constitutional process," he said.

The goal, he said, has been to make certain that anyone questioned about communism "would be protected also."

The bill outlawing the Communist party overshot the administration's mark on anti-Red legislation when an election-bound Congress enthusiastically passed it on the last day before adjournment.

Deputies Seek Way To Solve Breakins, Theft

Three breakins and the theft of some riding equipment still remain unsolved, according to the sheriff's department.

Two of the three breakins took place on successive nights at the Valley View Market north of Circleville on Route 23. Each time quantities of food were taken.

Over the weekend, a roadside stand, owned by Chester White, of Mt. Sterling Route 3, was broken into. A fence surrounding the market was smashed during the entry.

Among the items taken were: several melons, 35 pounds of bananas, several packages of potato chips and some honey in jars. The "sweet haul" was investigated by Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff.

A saddle and bridle were taken from the D. A. Marshall farm, on Circleville Route 8. The saddle, valued at $50 by the owners and the bridle, valued at $5, were taken from a corn crib where they were stored, according to Deputy Sheriff Carl White.

Dulles Extends Protection Line

Islands Off Formosa Slated For U.S. Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today American forces would be justified in defending some Nationalist-held islands between Formosa and the Chinese mainland from any Communist attack.

Dulles told a news conference it would be up to American military leaders to decide which islands in addition to Formosa they want to defend as part of their overall strategy for aiding the Chinese Nationalist stronghold.

Dulles spoke up in the face of talk by Peiping of "liberating" the island of Formosa, now held by Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese Nationalists. U. S. leaders have been inclined to discount the Peiping talk.

President Eisenhower already is on record as saying the U. S. 7th Fleet would protect Formosa from a Red attack. Dulles appeared to be extending this line of reasoning by including some of the smaller Chiang-held islands near Formosa.

IN TALKING about Europe, Dulles told newsmen he deeply regrets France's unwillingness to agree with five other Western European countries on the European army plan. But he said he has not given up hope France will ratify the European Army agreement when "it confronts the ultimate decision."

Dulles said he "still can hope" that France "will follow her great tradition" of idealism and approve the European army proposal.

But he added this hope is not the same as expectation.

Dulles' comments were made in response to questions concerning the failure of the recent Brussels conference to reach agreement on changes proposed by France in the European Defense Community Treaty.

U.S. Spending Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Commerce Department says American military spending abroad, not counting direct foreign aid, gave friendly foreign countries an economic lift to the tune of $2½ billion last year, compared with a little less than $2 billion in 1952.

Claim Rearming Of Germany By U.S. Near

British Prime Minister Churchill here last July.

Meanwhile, in Paris, French Premier Pierre Mendes-France wrestled anew with the European army crisis as a cross fire of demands mounted in his own country for acceptance or rejection of the controversial six-nation defense treaty.

Mendes-France flew back to meet his Cabinet today after a hurried conference in Britain yesterday with Churchill.

The premier reported last night to French President Rene Coty in the Normandy resort of Bagnole de L'Orne, filling the president in on his secret talk with Churchill and his failure at the six-nation Brussels conference to get approval of the sweeping revisions he demanded in the European Defense Community pact.

If Churchill and Mendes-France decided upon any alternative to EDC during their talk yesterday, it was a top diplomatic secret.

After the four-hour meeting, they announced only that they had agreed to "early and practical steps" to maintain Western unity.

Official sources disclosed they reviewed all possible alternatives for rearming West Germany and restoring full sovereignty to the Bonn government if EDC fails.

Facing Mendes-France was the grave decision on whether to try for another new set of modifications in the EDC treaty or let the French National Assembly begin a ratification debate, scheduled for Saturday, on the pact as is.

The premier himself had insisted that the modifications he demanded at Brussels were necessary to win French ratification. Some members of his Cabinet favor the pact as it stands, but others oppose it unless it is drastically altered.

Whichever way the premier swings he is bound to lose support. There was some doubt among politicians today whether his Cabinet could survive the debate.

Gas, Humidity Kill 3 Workers

CLEVELAND (AP)—Firemen today blamed carbon monoxide gas and high humidity for an industrial accident which killed three men and nearly asphyxiated 10 others yesterday at the American Steel & Wire Co.

Firemen said a pocket of the deadly gas had accumulated in a blast furnace and poured out when firemen opened a door of a gas washer chamber connected to the furnace. The wet, heavy air prevalent yesterday prevented the gas from dissipating quickly in the atmosphere. The three who died were attempting to save two men who opened the door.

Clarksburg Motorist Given Fine As Result Of Two-Car Accident

As the result of an accident in which a passenger in his car and another woman were injured, Harry Cole, 62, of Clarksburg was fined by acting Municipal Judge Emmitt Crist for failure to have assured clear distance ahead.

Cole was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Dwight Radcliff after the accident Sunday afternoon. The two-car collision took place on Route 22 just west of the city limits. The fine was $10 and costs.

Nellie Cole received a deep laceration of her right forearm. Ellen Wheatcraft, 32, a passenger in the other car, received a laceration on the top of her head.

Cole's car ran into the rear of an auto driven by Cleo S. Wheatcraft, of Radnor Route 1, according to the deputy's report.

City Safety Director Oscar Root said Tuesday the city has received at least one set of anti-glare shields for traffic lights, urged here as an aid for motorists looking into the sun to read the crossing light signals.

Root said the shields arrived "a week or two ago," and that they are waiting to be installed by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.

City policemen have warned that the lights at some intersections are so difficult to see, when the sun is low, that they constitute a serious traffic hazard.

Root indicated he did not know how soon the shields would be installed, but said they would probably be tried first on the light at Pickaway and Main or the one at Pickaway and Franklin streets.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Just as gloomy winds were blowing from Europe, bearing tidings that the European Defense Community looked all but dead, President Eisenhower spoke hopefully of peace there.

He didn't say what made him so optimistic. EDC was intended to be a major piece of insurance against Russian attack.

Eisenhower told his nationwide television audience last night not to be "too discouraged" about the prospects for peace in Europe. He said some great statesmen were working on it.

But that's what they've been doing for years, particularly in a big conference last week to breathe life into EDC, and chances for the single European army never looked so bleak as now.

"There is still something to be done in that region," he said, "and we are going to do it."

If this country has any solution for the EDC dilemma, it hasn't been disclosed, although no one has been more interested in the creation of EDC than the United States.

And if the British Prime Minister, Sir Winston Churchill, and the French premier and foreign minister, Pierre Mendes-France, found a solution they didn't indicate it after a five-hour meeting yesterday.

The Frenchman rushed to Churchill after the foreign ministers of the other EDC countries turned him down cold at Brussels last week on his ideas for the kind of EDC which the French might buy but the others wouldn't.

The single European army—made up of troops from France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—would have been, if it became a reality, a first, solid defense against Russian attack in Europe. It would mean the six no longer could have any national armies of their own but would pool their men in a single army, wearing the same uniforms, and under a unified command chosen from among themselves.

But it would also mean letting the Germans rearm. They'd have 12 divisions in EDC. Yet that was one of the main reasons for proposing the single army in the first place.

Since Germany was bound to rearm someday, she could be kept from becoming an international menace again if her troops were in a single army with her neighbors instead of in an all-German army.

The more the French thought of it the less they liked the idea although they were the ones who suggested EDC.

The thought of Germany's rearming at all worried the French. They envisioned a day when the Germans would dominate EDC. They didn't want to see France without a single national army of her own.

EDC couldn't come into existence without approval by the French Parliament. It hasn't approved yet.

Polio Fund Drive Nears Close; Moyer Warns Need 'Desperate'

"A donation to the Emergency March of Dimes now may mean a new life for a polio patient."

This was the urgent appeal issued Tuesday by Bob Moyer, director of the Pickaway Emergency Drive, in reminding the public this is the final week of the campaign. Stressing the emergency need, he said:

"Proper care now for polio patients may make possible for them a full life. With funds to provide this care we can continue to do something for those who are seriously afflicted."

The need for funds is desperate. The entire polio patient aid program, the prevention program and all the other good work of the National Foundation are in jeopardy.

Mendes-France said he'd put the question to Parliament this month. Mendes-France proposed a remedy for French opposition to EDC. He suggested to the other EDC ministers at Brussels last week 14 pages of changes in EDC. Unless the rest would accept them, reports quoted him as saying, the French Parliament would vote against the project.

But those same reports said his proposed changes were so drastic that they would, in effect, scuttle any hope for EDC, a real, single European army, for years to come. The others told him no.

That, it seemed, meant the death of EDC when Parliament voted, unless some way out could be found, equally satisfying to the French and the EDC members. None has been made known officially so far.

The French, with a fear of a rearmament Germany which may seem abnormal sometimes, might go along if the British would join EDC to give the French assurance the Germans could never run the single army.

Mendes-France may be playing a shrewd game here. He can tell the French Parliament now he made the best try he could to get changes pleasing to the French and then say without French approval EDC was dead. Faced with a choice between no EDC and Germany rearming on her own later, Parliament might say yes.

Lack of funds can close the only door of hope remaining to many thousands of polio victims, who depend on the March of Dimes."

Although this part of the state so far this summer is an area of comparatively normal polio incidence, care of patients from former years and transfer of patients have exhausted funds of the local chapter. The current financial crisis could impair the new polio prevention, too, Moyer emphasized.

The program includes evaluation of the trial vaccine given last spring in many parts of the nation, and the purchase of large quantities of gamma globulin, the temporary preventive hope.

The scope of the vaccine trial and study is unprecedented in Medical history, Moyer said. However, even if it is proved effective, no vaccine will be available until after the results of the study are published early in 1955.

Since the trial vaccine was given in only 217 areas, less than four percent of the children in the first three grades of school throughout the country have received three shots of the trial vaccine.

Even if the vaccine in 100 percent effective, it can prevent very few cases of paralytic polio this year.

FIGHTS CROP CONTROLS

IT WAS DESTINED to happen, sooner or later. Because of the character of his business the American farmer was certain to rebel against continued government interference and demand the right to operate according to the necessities for survival.

Joseph Blattner, a Pennsylvania farmer, has brought an action in a federal court to declare unconstitutional the wheat price and acreage control features of the government's Farm and Marketing Administration Acts.

Blattner demands that the government be enjoined from preventing him from raising his usual crops on his own land. He has been fined $179.20 as a penalty for raising wheat in excess of government allotments. He contends that he needs the 24 acres of wheat he sowed to feed 6,000 laying hens. He says the government is taking his property without due process of law, and giving no compensation in return.

Here is a point of law which has been well taken. The cause to be heard will be the farmer's right to operate his own business without government interference. To that end the Pennsylvania farmer asks that all government regulations be declared null and void because they violate the Fifth Amendment.

The outcome of this test case will be awaited with nationwide interest.

WHY ASIA DISLIKES U. S.

AMERICAN PRESTIGE in Viet Nam, says a press dispatch, appears to have reached its lowest ebb since World War II. The reason? Word has gone around that the United States accepts the principle of partition. Actually, the United States has not so much accepted the principle of partitioning Indochina as resigned itself to the fact that it could only be prevented by a shooting war, if at all. But the difference is academic to the Vietnamese: They hoped for more help, and now they feel let down.

How the people of Asia in general feel about the United States is something of a puzzle to many Americans. George Sokolsky, famous columnist who spent many years in China, has a plausible explanation. The peoples of Asia, most of them, hate the white man who came by sea. The great empires which moved in with their soldiers and bureaucrats and entrepreneurs to rule and exploit and look down on the natives were all sea powers. So is America. Russia infiltrated by land, more slowly and deviously, under the czars and the commissars alike. Asians, therefore, don't think of them as "white men."

It is said the boys in the Kremlin hold the fate of the world in their hands. A similar load, it will be recalled, got too heavy for a long line of dictators.

George E. Sokolsky's These Days

When Herbert Hoover was President of the United States, he kept his family out of public life as much as possible. His two sons had become accustomed to their father's public activities since the days in London when he assumed the responsibility for the Belgian relief. When Mr. Hoover became President, he and Mrs. Hoover were intent that the boys should not be absorbed by the limelight of publicity which can be so devastating to young people.

This was carried to such a point that when young Herbert sought his first job, he assumed another name, hoping that he would be hired for his own sake and not because he was a son of the President of the United States.

Neither he nor his brother Allan ever became associated with their father's activities although the Hoovers are very close as a family. Herbert Hoover, Jr., went his own way into mining and electronics and has been extraordinarily successful in both fields. He has been a partner in a number of enterprises, usually taking the top managerial position.

The Hoovers have always been an affectionate family and while the sons resented the abuse of their father in the years before his restored popularity, they remained aloof from public life and out of politics. Both sons have engaged in business in this country and in Central American countries.

Herbert Hoover, Jr.'s mine instrument business took him to many countries in Europe, Asia and South America. He has had a working knowledge of the operations of our foreign policy and he has known many of the men in the field who have to carry out day-by-day operations.

His first public job was in connection with Iranian oil, as an adviser to the Secretary of State. This task required the most delicate negotiation among many governments, particularly between Great Britain and Iran.

It will be recalled that in 1951, Iran nationalized the properties of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company in a fit of violent nationalism stimulated by the Prime Minister, Mossadegh. The British were virtually expelled from the country and the business was shut down. Mossadegh thought that he could operate the business; that the world would have to take his oil or suffer a shortage; it was soon evident that the oil of other countries not only could fill the demand but that the world market was glutted. Iranian oil was dead, unless Soviet Russia either bought the oil or conquered the country and took it.

Many oil men in the United States and other countries tried to find a formula for a compromise between Great Britain and Iran but failed. Then Herbert Hoover, Jr., was asked by the State Department to undertake the task. For a year, he commuted between Teheran, London and Washington until he found a middle-ground which could be acceptable to the Iranian Government, the British Government, and which oil companies could join in supporting.

Meat rationing has ended in England but, inexplicable as this seems, there has been no decline in demand for mutton and kidney.

Droughts in Kansas formerly lasted for thousands of years, according to scientists. Presumably there was no surplus wheat problem in those days.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

BREAKFAST arrived on a high, wobbly cart pushed by a young colored boy. The tray was crammed with metal-covered dishes. In one corner was a new cellophane toothbrush and a small tube of paste.

After breakfast I called Capt. Grodnik on the telephone and told him what had happened. He had no new information.

He said: "A girl answering Mary McVicker's description was reported on a flight to Pittsburgh, but almost any girl of the right age would answer that description. We haven't got a thing. That's why I had to give it to the FBI. You understand. Sorry you had a bad time."

"It wasn't bad," I said. "Darn nuisance. I drew one of the superior boys who's planning on running for Congress. A G-man as in gee-whiz. You know how they are. He'll be a real asset in Washington. Well, what do you think?"

"I don't know, Carney," Grodnik said heavily. "The more I think of it, the more I figure New Orleans is important. We were going to send a man there, but I think I'll go myself. I'd like to look over that boat. But I don't know why. Just knowing the nunch, I guess. God knows we don't have any facts to go on."

"No," I agreed. "You base this on the assumption that Stewart was probably Sessions?"

"That, and his girl taking off," Grodnik said. "We figured she was clear, just a girl that Stewart ditched when he left. We know he didn't communicate with her after he ran. I'm beginning to think now that she took off to meet him some place. It has to be something they arranged before he left, so New Orleans looks mighty possible right now. And it ties in with making that ticket reservation for that cruise."

"So why didn't he take the cruise?"

"I've been thinking about that one, too. I see it like this: Stewart is in Cincinnati, masquerading as a young kid. That's a smart disguise, by the way. And he could look the part all right. The only trick would be to act the part. So he's there in town for a couple of weeks before the boat goes, just waiting. And he hangs around the dock, finally manages to wangle a little job on board. So he thinks that's an even safer way to make the trip and still be on hand where he's supposed to be. How does that listen?"

"Yes, very sensible. And it worked out fine, too. I didn't tell you, but the boat captain knew what I was there for. And he made sure everybody else knew, too. So Stewart had plenty of warning. And if he had taken up that reservation, even that clunk Kebbie would have nailed him coming on the boat."

Grodnik chuckled and the receiver vibrated thinly in my ear. "I talked to Kebbie. He doesn't think much of you. Maybe you'll be interested to hear that he's been transferred to the records division. He won't be able to ruin anything more."

"Just don't let him handle anything important," I said. "Well, I think you've got the right slant on Stewart and that boat business. I can't see much we can do before New Orleans, can you?"

"Well, now," Grodnik said thoughtfully. "You know I was trying to guess just where Stewart and his girl planned to meet. You think she might join the boat somewhere before New Orleans?"

"She'd be pretty conspicuous if she did," I said. "By now most of the passengers know each other by sight. A newcomer wouldn't have a chance of passing without notice. No, I can't buy that one."

"Yeah, well, maybe not. It's all I could think of. So it's New Orleans then. I'm having the cops there check all outgoing ships and planes and trains. The works. But I don't expect much. But there'll be a mob to meet that boat when she docks."

"Fine," I said sourly. "To the devil with the lot of you."

"Yeah, I'm sorry, Carney. I know how you feel. I saw Eli Jonas this morning. He says you shouldn't worry. Just do your best. But I guess that doesn't help much, does it?"

"No," I said thinly.

"Well, keep in touch, boy. And yell if you want something."

"Okay, captain. Thanks." Then I went to the Paduchan hospital to see Russell. He was sitting up in bed with a thick bandage on the side of his head.

"Good heavens," he said when he saw me. "What are you doing here, Wilde?"

"I missed the boat, Mr. Purser," I said lightly. "Thought you could tell me where to find it. How are you getting on?"

Russell laughed at me. "Fine. Got a headache, but the X-rays don't show any damage."

"Fine," I said. "But what about the boat?"

Russell grinned. "The boat," he said, "will be at Memphis about midnight tonight. Natchez early Thursday afternoon. You can meet it either place. If you're in no hurry, we can go together and rejoin at Natchez."

"Fine," I said gratefully. "But should you be traveling so soon?" "Sure," he said readily. "I was just lying here trying to make up my mind whether I wanted to run down to the farm tonight for a visit. But it might worry my mother to see my head in a bandage. I'll just take the night train for Natchez. It gets in early in the morning but the sleeper is shunted into the yards. I'll get plenty of sleep."

"Sounds good," I said. "If you're sure."

"Man, I'm in better shape than you are," Russell said cheerfully. "You look like a battered ham. Don't you ever sleep?"

"All I've been doing is sleeping lately," I said. "It doesn't seem to do me much good. But there'll be plenty of time on the train. What makes you so eager to get back, though? Won't the company pay your salary while you're laid up?"

"Of course they will," Russell said indignantly. "It's a splendid company. Probably have the best sick-pay benefit program of any riverboat company in the . . ."

"You own a piece of it?" I grinned.

"Well, my mother does," Russell laughed. "In fact, she owns it all. But it's still a fine . . ."

"Okay, okay," I said agreeably. "Then why don't you take a few days off and rest up?"

"I'm cargo officer for the Dixie Dandy," he insisted. "I have to be there with the manifests and . . ."

"Cargo? On that boat?"

"It's a big boat," Russell said simply. "We can carry enough heavy cargo to pay most of our running expenses."

Russell and I were a fine pair of weary crooks. We tumbled through a good dinner at the hotel, neither of us displaying much appetite. Then we bought a compartment on the late train, and promptly slept from then until the porter woke us at a deserted siding in Natchez.

DIET AND HEALTH

Causes of Chest Pain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NERVOUSNESS and heart disease are two main causes of chest pain. However, neither should be blamed as the cause until the other has been eliminated.

Two out of every three persons who consult their physicians about their hearts because of chest pain symptoms are needlessly concerned.

Careful Examination

Many people who used to worry about acidity of the stomach, or a bilious feeling, are now alarmed about pain in the chest. They visit their physician for reassurance as well as relief, and this is a good thing to do. The patient should have a meticulous examination in order to determine whether his heart is affected.

However, there are many other causes for chest pains besides pure nervousness or heart disease.

A Common Cause

One common disease that brings this pain is known as pericarditis. This is an inflammation or infection of the sac that covers the heart. Fever accompanies this type of heart pain, and it is more severe on breathing and movement. Electrocardiograms usually give typical findings.

Pneumonia is also a common cause of chest pain. High blood pressure and diseases of the blood vessels of the chest may also be at fault. Recently, a type of epilepsy or brain irritation has been shown to cause some attacks of chest pain. Diagnosis in the latter case can be made by means of a special instrument that measures the brain waves, an electroencephalograph.

If no basic cause for chest pain is found, and no heart disease exists, it is, as a rule, of a nervous nature. Reassuring the patient is then very helpful in eliminating the symptoms.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. E. S.: I am sixty-five years old, and have had bleeding from my rectum for about a week. What could be the cause of this bleeding?

Answer: Bleeding from the rectum may be due to many causes. It may be due to hemorrhoids, a fissure or crack in the rectum, polyps, infection or some type of tumor. It would be best for you to consult your physician immediately. After a thorough examination, he will be able to determine the cause.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has not fulfilled completely his campaign pledge to check the Roosevelt-Truman trend toward public ownership and operation of a vast system of power dams, generating plants and transmission lines on the pattern of the Tennessee Valley Authority. But he has reversed a movement which would have made Uncle Sam the dominant figure in the utility industry.

The public versus private controversy in this field does not involve only the production, distribution and sale of light, heat and energy. As numerous courts have said in ruling against Federal expansion, if Washington take over this industry partially or totally, it also can go into the business of manufacturing and retailing bread, shoes, clothing, television sets, automobiles and what-have-you.

Legally, there is nothing so sacrosanct about power (harnessed electricity) that sets it apart from equally essential articles of everyday living. Once the government gains a monopoly of power, water, steam or atomic, there is no valid reason why it cannot engage in any other kind of production. So the courts and Congress have held, with only a few dissents.

POLITICS — President Eisenhower departed from his pledge of fostering private enterprise when he threw his influence behind Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's demand that construction of the Niagara Falls power project be entrusted to the New York Power Authority. Politics rather than conservative economic motives motivated this decision.

The project, which is the greatest of its kind east of the Great Divide, would be underway now if it had not been for Dewey's intervention. By an overwhelming vote, with only one New York Republican member siding with the governor, the House passed the bill authorizing construction—and operation by four private companies.

POPULAR — Sen. Herbert H. Lehman and Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., the latter with his mind on succeeding Dewey at Albany, sponsored a bill for federal control. But when it faced certain defeat, they got behind the Dewey proposal. Three famous governors—Al Smith, F.D.R. and Lehman—have made public power a popular issue in the Empire State.

Dewey succeeded in bottling up the House bill in the Senate Public Works Committee preventing passage at the recent session. However, even though the committee reports favorably on the New York Port Authority measure, it is believed that the Senate will vote in favor of the private proposal since there are no collateral aspects—irrigation, navigation, conservation—to the Niagara Falls project. It is only a power question.

Senate action may depend on the outcome of several November contests in the Northwest where proponents and opponents of public power—the Hells Canyon undertaking, in particular—are staging hard fights on this single issue. The question of private or public construction of Hells Canyon is still before the Federal Power Commission for decision. FPC favors private development. As Herbert Hoover thought, erroneously, that there was one more political victory in favoring prohibition in 1932, so the Democrats believe that they can still bring ballot-box capital out of public power in 1954.

ATTITUDE — Eisenhower delighted the private utilitarians with his insistence that, instead of expanding TVA, the Atomic Energy Commission buy private power to meet the needs of customers in the TVA area. More than any other presidential decision, this action expressed Ike's fundamental attitude on the question of public versus private operations.

Omitting the technical details, what Eisenhower seeks in this matter is to confine TVA to the original concept of that Rooseveltian experiment. The President believes that it should remain a hydroelectric (water power) venture, and not enlarge its sphere of activities through the construction of steam plants inside or outside the valley. It was because of the TVA-ers' ambitious expansion program that he called it "creeping socialism." What Ike aims to foster and strengthen is "creeping capitalism."

FIGHTS CROP CONTROLS

IT WAS DESTINED to happen, sooner or later. Because of the character of his business the American farmer was certain to rebel against continued government interference and demand the right to operate according to the necessities for survival.

Joseph Blattner, a Pennsylvania farmer, has brought an action in a federal court to declare unconstitutional the wheat price and acreage control features of the government's Farm and Marketing Administration Acts.

Blattner demands that the government be enjoined from preventing him from raising his usual crops on his own land. He has been fined $179.20 as a penalty for raising wheat in excess of government allotments. He contends that he needs the 24 acres of wheat he sowed to feed 6,000 laying hens. He says the government is taking his property without due process of law, and giving no compensation in return.

Here is a point of law which has been well taken. The cause to be heard will be the farmer's right to operate his own business without government interference. To that end the Pennsylvania farmer asks that all government regulations be declared null and void because they violate the Fifth Amendment.

The outcome of this test case will be awaited with nationwide interest.

WHY ASIA DISLIKES U. S.

AMERICAN PRESTIGE in Viet Nam, says a press dispatch, appears to have reached its lowest ebb since World War II. The reason? Word has gone around that the United States accepts the principle of partition. Actually, the United States has not so much accepted the principle of partitioning Indochina as resigned itself to the fact that it could only be prevented by a shooting war, if at all. But the difference is academic to the Vietnamese: They hoped for more help, and now they feel let down.

How the people of Asia in general feel about the United States is something of a puzzle to many Americans. George Sokolsky, famous columnist who spent many years in China, has a plausible explanation. The peoples of Asia, most of them, hate the white man who came by sea. The great empires which moved in with their soldiers and bureaucrats and entrepreneurs to rule and exploit and look down on the natives were all sea powers. So is America. Russia infiltrated by land, more slowly and deviously, under the czars and the commissars alike. Asians, therefore, don't think of them as "white men."

It is said the boys in the Kremlin hold the fate of the world in their hands. A similar load, it will be recalled, got too heavy for a long line of dictators.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

When Herbert Hoover was President of the United States, he kept his family out of public life as much as possible. His two sons had become accustomed to their father's public activities since the days in London when he assumed the responsibility for the Belgian relief. When Mr. Hoover became President, he and Mrs. Hoover were intent that the boys should not be absorbed by the limelight of publicity which can be so devastating to young people.

This was carried to such a point that when young Herbert sought his first job, he assumed another name, hoping that he would be hired for his own sake and not because he was a son of the President of the United States.

Neither he nor his brother Allan ever became associated with their father's activities although the Hoovers are very close as a family. Herbert Hoover, Jr., went his own way into mining and electronics and has been extraordinarily successful in both fields. He has been a partner in a number of enterprises, usually taking the top managerial position.

The Hoovers have always been an affectionate family and while the sons resented the abuse of their father in the years before his restored popularity, they remained aloof from public life and out of politics. Both sons have engaged in business in this country and in Central American countries.

Herbert Hoover, Jr.'s mine instrument business took him to many countries in Europe, Asia and South America. He has had a working knowledge of the operations of our foreign policy and he has known many of the men in the field who have to carry out day-by-day operations.

His first public job was in connection with Iranian oil, as an adviser to the Secretary of State. This task required the most delicate negotiation among many governments, particularly between Great Britain and Iran.

It will be recalled that in 1951, Iran nationalized the properties of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company in a fit of violent nationalism stimulated by the Prime Minister, Mossadegh. The British were virtually expelled from the country and the business was shut down. Mossadegh thought that he could operate the business; that the world would have to take his oil or suffer a shortage; it was soon evident that the oil of other countries not only could fill the demand but that the world market was glutted. Iranian oil was dead, unless Soviet Russia either bought the oil or conquered the country and took it.

Many oil men in the United States and other countries tried to find a formula for a compromise between Great Britain and Iran but failed. Then Herbert Hoover, Jr., was asked by the State Department to undertake the task. For a year, he commuted between Teheran, London and Washington until he found a middle-ground which could be acceptable to the Iranian Government, the British Government, and which oil companies could join in supporting.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

BREAKFAST arrived on a high, wobbly cart pushed by a young colored boy. The tray was crammed with metal-covered dishes. In one corner was a new cellophane toothbrush and a small tube of paste.

After breakfast I called Capt. Grodnik on the telephone and told him what had happened. He had no new information.

He said: "A girl answering Mary McVicker's description was reported on a flight to Pittsburgh, but almost any girl of the right age would answer that description. We haven't got a thing. That's why I had to give it to the FBI. You understand. Sorry you had a bad time."

"It wasn't bad," I said. "Damn nuisance. I drew one of the superior boys who's planning on running for Congress. A G-man as in gee-whiz. You know how they are. He'll be a real asset in Washington. Well, what do you think?"

"I don't know, Carney," Grodnik said heavily. "The more I think of it, the more I figure New Orleans is important. We were going to send a man there, but I think I'll go myself. I'd like to look over that boat. But I don't know why. Just playing the nunch, I guess. God knows we don't have any facts to go on."

"No," I agreed. "You base this on the assumption that Stewart was probably Sessions?"

"That, and his girl taking off," Grodnik said. "We figured she was clear, just a girl that Stewart ditched when he left. We know he didn't communicate with her after he ran. I'm beginning to think now that she took off to meet him some place. It has to be something they arranged before he left, so New Orleans looks mighty possible right now. And it ties in with making that ticket reservation for that cruise."

"Go why didn't he take the cruise?" "I've been thinking about that one, too. I see it like this: Stewart is in Cincinnati, masquerading as a young kid. That's a smart disguise, by the way. And he could look the part all right. The only trick would be to act the part. So he's there in town for a couple of weeks before the boat goes, just waiting. And he hangs around the dock, finally manages to wangle a little job on board. So he thinks that's an even safer way to make the trip and still be on hand where he's supposed to be. How does that listen?"

"Yes, very sensible. And it worked out fine, too. I didn't tell you, but the boat captain knew what I was there for. And he made sure everybody else knew, too. So Stewart had plenty of warning. And if he had taken up that reservation, even that clunk Keble would have nailed him coming on the boat."

Grodnik chuckled and the receiver vibrated thinly in my ear. "I talked to Keble. He doesn't think much of you. Maybe you'll be interested to hear that he's been transferred to the records division. He won't be able to ruin anything more."

"Just don't let him handle anything important," I said. "Well, I think you've got the right slant on Stewart and that boat business. I can't see much we can do before New Orleans, can you?"

"Well, now," Grodnik said thoughtfully. "You know, I was trying to guess just where Stewart and his girl planned to meet. You think she might join the boat somewhere before New Orleans?"

"She'd be pretty conspicuous if she did," I said. "By now most of the passengers know each other by sight. A newcomer wouldn't have a chance of passing without notice. No, I can't buy that one."

"Yeah, well, maybe not. It's all I could think of. So it's New Orleans then. I'm having the cops there check all outgoing ships and planes and trains. The works. But I don't expect much. But there'll be a mob to meet that boat when she docks."

"Fine," I said sourly. "To the devil with the lot of you."

"Yeah, I'm sorry, Carney. I know how you feel. I saw Eli Jonas this morning. He says you shouldn't worry. Just do your best. But I guess that doesn't help much, does it?"

"No," I said thinly.

"Well, keep in touch, boy. And yell if you want something."

"Okay, captain. Thanks."

Then I went to the Paducah hospital to see Russell. He was sitting up in bed with a thick bandage on the side of his head.

"Good heavens," he said when he saw me. "What are you doing here, Wilde?"

"I missed the boat, Mr. Purser."

"I said, 'Thought you could tell me where to find it. How are you getting on?'"

Russell laughed at me. "Fine. Got a headache, but the X-rays don't show any damage."

"Fine," I said. "But what about the boat?"

Russell grinned. "The boat," he said, "will be at Memphis about midnight tonight. Natchez early Thursday afternoon. You can meet it either place. If you're in no hurry, we can go together and rejoin at Natchez."

"Fine," I said gratefully. "But should you be travelling so soon?" "Sure," he said readily. "I was just lying here trying to make up my mind whether I wanted to run down to the farm tonight for a visit. But it might worry my mother to see my head in a bandage. I'll just take the night train for Natchez. It gets in early in the morning but the sleeper is shunted into the yards. I'll get plenty of sleep."

"Sounds good," I said. "If you're sure."

"Man, I'm in better shape than you are," Russell said cheerfully. "You look like a battered ham. Don't you ever sleep?"

"All I've been doing is sleeping lately," I said. "It doesn't seem to do me much good. But there'll be plenty of time on the train. What makes you so eager to get back, though? Won't the company pay your salary while you're laid up?"

"Of course they will," Russell said indignantly. "It's a splendid company. Probably have the best sick-pay benefit program of any riverboat company in the . . ."

"You own a piece of it?" I grinned.

"Well, my mother does," Russell laughed. "In fact, she owns it all. But it's still a fine . . ."

"Okay, okay," I said agreeably. "Then why don't you take a few days off and rest up?"

"I'm cargo officer for the Dixie Dandy," he insisted. "I have to be there with the manifests and . . ."

"Cargo? On that boat?"

"It's a big boat," Russell said simply. "We can carry enough heavy cargo to pay most of our running expenses."

Russell and I were a fine pair of weary crooks. We tumbled through a good dinner at the hotel, neither of us displaying much appetite. Then we bought a compartment on the late train, and promptly slept from then until the porter woke us at a deserted siding in Natchez.

Causes of Chest Pain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NERVOUSNESS and heart disease are two main causes of chest pain. However, neither should be blamed as the cause until the other has been eliminated.

Two out of every three persons who consult their physicians about their hearts because of chest pain symptoms are needlessly concerned.

Careful Examination
Many people who used to worry about acidity of the stomach, or a bilious feeling, are now alarmed about pain in the chest. They visit their physician for reassurance as well as relief, and this is a good thing to do. The patient should have a meticulous examination in order to determine whether his heart is affected.

However, there are many other causes for chest pains besides pure nervousness or heart disease. A Common Cause
One common disease that brings this pain is known as pericarditis. This is an inflammation or infection of the sac that covers the heart. Fever accompanies this type of heart pain, and it is more severe on breathing and movement. Electrocardiograms usually give typical findings.

Pneumonia is also a common cause of chest pain. High blood pressure and diseases of the blood vessels of the chest may also be at fault. Recently, a type of epilepsy or brain irritation has been shown to cause some attacks of chest pain. Diagnosis in the latter case can be made by means of a special instrument that measures the brain waves, an electroencephalograph.

If no basic cause for chest pain is found, and no heart disease exists, it is, as a rule, of a nervous nature. Reassuring the patient is then very helpful in eliminating the symptoms.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. E. S.: I am sixty-five years old, and have had bleeding from my rectum for about a week. What could be the cause of this bleeding?

Answer: Bleeding from the rectum may be due to many causes. It may be due to hemorrhoids, a fissure or crack in the rectum, polyps, infection or some type of tumor. It would be best for you to consult your physician immediately. After a thorough examination, he will be able to determine the cause.

Fifty Attend Luncheon Meet Of Republican Women's Club

Mrs. Bender Is Guest Speaker

A total of 50 members and guests were present for a luncheon held Monday in the basement of First Methodist church when Pickaway County Women's Republican Club honored state and county candidates' wives.

Guests of honor for the occasion were Mrs. George H. Bender, wife of the candidate for United States Senate, Mrs. Ted Brown, wife of candidate for Secretary of State and Mrs. Leo Blackburn, wife of candidate for Congress.

Also honored on the occasion were Mrs. Madeline Hoyt and Mrs. Josef Clark, both of Chillicothe, and Mrs. Sterling Lamb of Circleville.

Mrs. H. O. Caldwell of near Lockbourne conducted a business session and served as mistress of ceremonies. Mrs. Bender served as main speaker for the event.

Program for the day was in keeping with the observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Republican club. Mrs. Bender, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Blackburn, Mrs. H. E. Louis of New Holland and Mrs. Richard Hedges of Ashville participated in the observance.

Three musical selections were presented by a chorus of members, including Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, Mrs. Joseph Peters, Mrs. Chester Noecker, Mrs. Boyd Fosbaugh, Mrs. Ralph Dunkle and Mrs. Harold Hines. They were accompanied by Mrs. Martin Cromley.

Table decorations featured arrangements of roses, presented by Mrs. Sterley Croman, Mrs. Cecil Ward and Mrs. Donald Watt.

Luncheon hostesses included Mrs. J. B. Work, Mrs. Lawrence Liston, Miss Alice Ada May, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. William Radcliff, Mrs. Wright Noecker, Mrs. Ilo Cramer, Mrs. George Steeley, Mrs. Edith Vlerebone, Mrs. Elliot Crites, Miss Doris Cook and Mrs. Arthur Swingle.

Iced Tea Brings Cool Refreshment For A Warm Day

It's hard to get good glass of iced tea—if you like real tea flavor and not just amber-colored water. Usually the brew is not strong enough and it is diluted with too much ice; or if the brew is strong enough, it is still over-diluted.

Here is our own favorite method of making iced tea. We like it because it is quick and gives uniform flavor.

We use three level teaspoons of a fine grade of black tea and two cups of water for every two 16-ounce-glass servings. Yes, we like a really tall drink! First we put the required amount of water on to boil; as soon as the water boils, we pour it over the tea leaves in a teapot and let it brew exactly five minutes by the clock.

When we stir the tea leaves once and strain the tea into the glasses. If your glasses aren't heavy, put a teaspoon in the glass before you pour. Next we put ice cubes in each glass—leaving room for dilution—give the tea and ice a whirl with a long-handled spoon, and serve at once.

If the tea stands a bit and clouds, add a tablespoon of boiling water for each serving and it will clear. But honestly, we think there is too much fuss about tea clouding—especially since we learned that fine teas are more likely to cloud than poorer grades!

Because the members of our family and many of our friends like their iced tea sweetened and flavored with lemon or lime, in summer we often make up a batch of lemon or lime tea syrup and keep it in the refrigerator. At serving time, we add syrup to taste to help themselves. You can make other flavors of tea syrup, too—orange or mint, for instance.

Fifty Attend Luncheon Meet Of Republican Women's Club

Mrs. Bender Is Guest Speaker

A total of 50 members and guests were present for a luncheon held Monday in the basement of First Methodist church when Pickaway County Women's Republican Club honored state and county candidates' wives.

Guests of honor for the occasion were Mrs. George H. Bender, wife of the candidate for United States Senate, Mrs. Ted Brown, wife of candidate for Secretary of State and Mrs. Leo Blackburn, wife of candidate for Congress.

Also honored on the occasion were Mrs. Madeline Hoyt and Mrs. Josef Clark, both of Chillicothe, and Mrs. Sterling Lamb of Circleville.

Mrs. H. O. Caldwell of near Lockbourne conducted a business session and served as mistress of ceremonies. Mrs. Bender served as main speaker for the event.

Program for the day was in keeping with the observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Republican club. Mrs. Burr, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Blackburn, Mrs. H. E. Louis of New Holland and Mrs. Richard Hedges of Ashville participated in the observance.

Three musical selections were presented by a chorus of members, including Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, Mrs. Joseph Peters, Mrs. Chester Noecker, Mrs. Boyd Fosbaugh, Mrs. Ralph Dunkle and Mrs. Harold Hines. They were accompanied by Mrs. Martin Cromley.

Table decorations featured arrangements of roses, presented by Mrs. Stanley Croman, Mrs. Cecil Ward and Mrs. Donald Watt.

Luncheon hostesses included Mrs. J. B. Work, Mrs. Lawrence Liston, Miss Alice Ada May, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. William Radcliff, Mrs. Wright Noecker, Mrs. Ilo Creamer, Mrs. George Steele, Mrs. Edith Vlerbome, Mrs. Elliot Crites, Miss Doris Cook and Mrs. Arthur Swingle.

Iced Tea Brings Cool Refreshment For A Warm Day

It's hard to get good glass of iced tea—if you like real tea flavor and not just amber-colored water. Usually the brew is not strong enough and it is diluted with too much ice; or if the brew is strong enough, it is still over-diluted.

Here is our own favorite method of making iced tea. We like it because it is quick and gives uniform flavor.

We use three level teaspoons of a fine grade of black tea and two cups of water for every two 16-ounce-glass servings. Yes, we like a really tall drink! First we put the required amount of water on to boil; as soon as the water boils, we pour it over the tea leaves in a teapot and let it brew exactly five minutes by the clock.

When we stir the tea leaves once and strain the tea into the glasses. If your glasses aren't heavy, put a teaspoon in the glass before you pour. Next we put ice cubes in each glass—leaving room for dilution—give the tea and ice a whirl with a long-handled spoon, and serve at once.

If the tea stands a bit and clouds, add a tablespoon of boiling water for each serving and it will clear. But honestly, we think there is too much fuss about tea clouding—especially since we learned that fine teas are more likely to cloud than poorer grades!

Because the members of our family and many of our friends like their iced tea sweetened and flavored with lemon or lime, in summer we often make up a batch of lemon or lime tea syrup and keep it in the refrigerator. At serving time, we add syrup to taste to help themselves. You can make other flavors of tea syrup, too—orange or mint, for instance.

LEMON OR LIME TEA SYRUP:
Ingredients: 1 cup sugar, ¾ cup water, lemon or lime rind ¼ cup lemon or lime juice.

Method: Put sugar and water in

Back-Breaking Moving Chores Simplified By Helpful Ideas

Organized Plan Important Step To Ease Work

Moving Executive Has Valuable Hints On Ways To Pack

Moving day is a backbreaking chore. As a matter of fact long before the big day the lady of the house is quite at her wits' end organizing the multitude of loose ends to move to a new home.

Many women prefer to do the entire job themselves. But most moving companies offer the services of the moving man to help with the packing as well as the moving.

If you give him a floor plan of the new home, he will even set the furniture down where you want it. If you cannot afford to turn the entire job over to a professional mover, your moving man will tell you how to organize your efforts and belongings.

There are things which may be done long in advance. Plan to leave all yellowed magazines and letters. Clean out attic, cupboards and closets.

WASH stored clothes, blankets, draperies and other extras that might be dusty. Wash china and glassware. Suds off luggage and closet equipment — bags, boxes, shoebags — so no dust will be carted off to the new home.

Small rugs, slipcovers, window dressings may be laundered a week or so before moving and put on hangers ready to move to the new home.

Rugs too big for the washer may be scrubbed clean on the floor with soap suds and a stiff brush. When dry, they may be rolled up so that moving day traffic won't soil them.

There is an art to packing glassware, china, books, medicines and domestics. The best advice comes from men who do it most often. The boss of a large moving firm tells how his men do it:

Books — photograph records — Use extra heavy cartons, wooden boxes or crates and pack flat, one on top of the other, to provide greatest resistance to weight pressure. If carton or box allows for two rows, pack books flat with bindings back to back so that one book will not damage pages of another.

Dinnerware, glassware — Wrap each piece in tissue or newspaper; pack in a strong barrel or drum, heavier pieces on the bottom. Stand plates on edge and place pads of paper between layers.

Clothing put into dustproof wardrobes. Do not wrap fabrics in newspapers. The ink may cause stains.

Cosmetic jars, medicines, perfume bottles — seal corks and stoppers with natural nail polish so they don't leak and pack bottles in a separate carton or container. Use masking tape or paraffin to seal stoppers. Jewelry, valuable documents, personal papers may be wrapped separately, preferably in a fireproof container. Keep them in your personal possession on moving day.

Furniture casters should be removed from furniture and placed in individual sacks with tags identifying to what piece of furniture they belong.

Make a check list of people to notify about your change of address — postoffice, insurance company, bank, gas, electric and phone companies, magazines etc.

If it is at all possible do some housekeeping at the new home before you move in. Make sure closets open and refrigerator are cleaned and aired. Walls and wood work may need washing. Scrub and line cabinets and shelves with fresh paper.

On moving day carry fresh towels, washcloths and soap with you. A well packed lunch or dinner bas-

HERE'S HOW . . .

MAKE A BUNK BED

For the children's room, or the summer camp, bunk beds are space savers, and are easy to make.

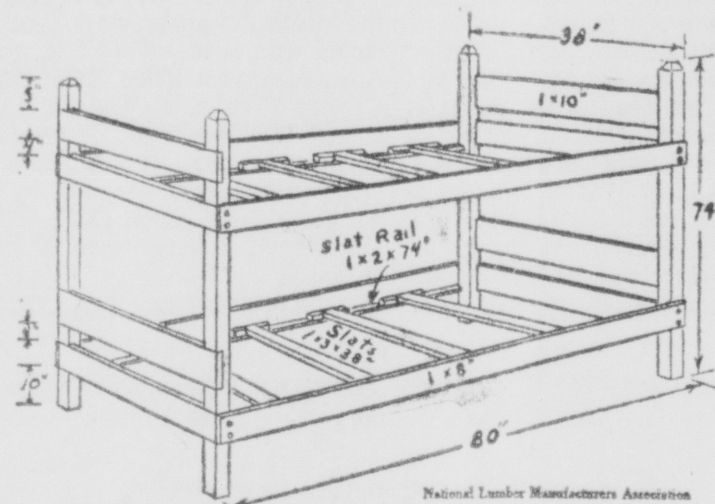

The bed posts are of 3 by 3-inch lumber, each 74 inches long. The dimensions below are easy to follow. The cuts for insertion of the head boards and end framing rails are 1/4-inch deep. Drill 1/4-inch holes for the bolts with which the side rails will be fastened later.

Bed-ends are assembled by gluing the head boards and end rails and securing them with No. 6, 1 1/2-inch wood screws, countersunk.

Side rails of 1 by 8-inch lumber, 80 inches long, are drilled to match the holes in the posts. To each side rail is added a slat-support rail, a strip of 1 by 2, 74 inches long, securely glued and screwed into place. Four pairs of glue blocks, placed 20 inches apart, provide 2 1/2-inch slots for the slats.

The completed side rails are bolted to the bed-end assemblies. The 8 slats are 1 by 3-inch lumber, each 38 inches long.

All sharp edges should be rounded or beveled.

Costs So High Do-It-Yourself Now The Rage

All of this home-care-and repair and do-it-yourself business we hear so much about nowadays has a lot of reason back of it. Briefly, we are obliged to take care of our homes because new homes cost so much.

Of course, it is getting to be almost old-fashioned to talk about the high costs of building. We have been talking about that ever since World War II and costs still show no signs of going down. So it is interesting to run across some reasons for this situation.

Taxes are a big item, says an expert, Myron L. Matthews of the Dow Service building reports of New York. He cites an average size house selling with its land for about $17,225 and finds that taxes account for $1,854 of that cost.

"In 1939-41," he says, "the sales price of that house included only about 2 per cent to cover the miscellaneous taxes then current. Today, taxes add almost 13 per cent."

AND HE is not talking about the taxes you pay after you buy the house. He means taxes on the builders' corporate profits and taxes on salaries and on labor in the production of the materials and the house.

Matthews incidentally divides the cost of that house as follows: 39 per cent for materials, equipment and appliances; 30 per cent for labor on the site, and 31 per cent for land and builder's overhead and profit — of which he says the land probably amounts to $2000.

He had figured other mark-ups since pre-war days, such as $972 on the same house for loss of productivity at mill, mine, quarry, forest and site; and $244 for added benefits to the building trades, but those bring up another story. Death and taxes are enough and we do not aim to be funeral, so we will settle for the tax argument today.

New Jellied Paint Marketed In Fall

There is a new paint coming on the market this fall. You take the top off the can, tip it upside down and the paint does not run out. It is jellied. Still it is supposed to spread with a brush just the same as any liquid paint.

The big idea is that this form of paint will never have to be stirred no matter how long it stands on the shelf. The chemists who developed it say they tested a can that had stood for more than two years and there was no settling.

The secret lies in the vehicle of the paint, which in this case is a formula of thixotropic alkyds. The manufacturers of this ingredient do not intend to make paint, but rather to license the use of the vehicle

Bird 'Bomb' Ready

You can get aerosol "bombs" loaded with a special gelatin compound which is harmless to birds, but so disagreeable to them underfoot that they will not roost on your window sills, shutters, or roof eaves. It's hated by pigeons and starlings. Still it's odorless and harmless to humans. The makers claim it will cling to any metal, hard stone, wood or other building material without staining. It is propelled out of its can by liquefied freon gas.

to various paint makers, similar to the way ethyl is licensed for gasoline.

In using this paint, you dip the brush in the jelly, bring out a blob of paint and spread it. There is no dripping on the floor nor on your arm when painting overhead.

Back-Breaking Moving Chores Simplified By Helpful Ideas

Organized Plan Important Step To Ease Work

Moving Executive Has Valuable Hints On Ways To Pack

Moving day is a backbreaking chore. As a matter of fact long before the big day the lady of the house is quite at her wits' end organizing the multitude of loose ends to move to a new home.

Many women prefer to do the entire job themselves. But most moving companies offer the services of the moving man to help with the packing as well as the moving.

If you give him a floor plan of the new home, he will even set the furniture down where you want it. If you cannot afford to turn the entire job over to a professional mover, your moving man will tell you how to organize your efforts and belongings.

There are things which may be done long in advance. Plan to leave all yellowed magazines and letters. Clean out attic, cupboards and closets.

WASH stored clothes, blankets, draperies and other extras that might be dusty. Wash china and glassware. Suds off luggage and closet equipment — bags, boxes, shoebags — so no dust will be carted off to the new home.

Small rugs, slipcovers, window dressings may be laundered a week or so before moving and put on hangers ready to move to the new home.

Rugs too big for the washer may be scrubbed clean on the floor with soap suds and a stiff brush. When dry, they may be rolled up so that moving day traffic won't soil them.

There is an art to packing glassware, china, books, medicines and domestics. The best advice comes from men who do it most often. The boss of a large moving firm tells how his men do it:

Books photograph records — Use extra heavy cartons, wooden boxes or crates and pack flat, one on top of the other, to provide greatest resistance to weight pressure. If carton or box allows for two rows, pack books flat with bindings back to back so that one book will not damage pages of another.

Dinnerware, glassware — Wrap each piece in tissue or newspaper; pack in a strong barrel or drum, heavier pieces on the bottom. Stand plates on edge and place pads of paper between layers.

Clothing put into dustproof wardrobes. Do not wrap fabrics in newspapers. The ink may cause stains.

Cosmetic jars, medicines, perfume bottles — seal corks and stoppers with natural nail polish so they don't leak and pack bottles in a separate carton or container. Use masking tape or paraffin to seal stoppers. Jewelry, valuable documents, personal papers may be wrapped separately, preferably in a fireproof container. Keep them in your personal possession on moving day.

Furniture casters should be removed from furniture and placed in individual sacks with tags identifying to what piece of furniture they belong.

Make a check list of people to notify about your change of address — postoffice, insurance company, bank, gas, electric and phone companies magazines etc.

If it is at all possible do some housekeeping at the new home before you move in. Make sure closets oven and refrigerator are cleaned and aired. Walls and wood work may need washing. Scrub and line cabinets and shelves with fresh paper.

On moving day carry fresh towels, washcloths and soap with you. A well packed lunch or dinner bas-

HERE'S HOW . . .

MAKE A BUNK BED

For the children's room, or the summer camp, bunk beds are space savers, and are easy to make.

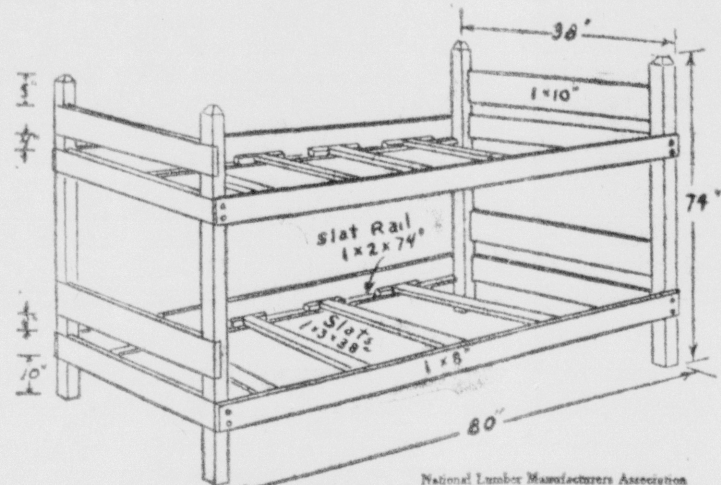

The bed posts are of 3 by 3-inch lumber, each 74 inches long. The dimensions below are easy to follow. The cuts for insertion of the head boards and end framing rails are 1/2-inch deep. Drill 1/4-inch holes for the bolts with which the side rails will be fastened later.

Bed-ends are assembled by gluing the head boards and end rails and securing them with No. 6, 1 1/2-inch wood screws, countersunk.

Side rails of 1 by 8-inch lumber, 80 inches long, are drilled to match the holes in the posts. To each side rail is added a slat-support rail, a strip of 1 by 2, 74 inches long, securely glued and screwed into place. Four pairs of glue blocks, placed 20 inches apart, provide 2 1/2-inch slots for the slats.

The completed side rails are bolted to the bed-end assemblies. The 8 slats are 1 by 3-inch lumber, each 58 inches long.

All sharp edges should be rounded or beveled.

Costs So High Do-It-Yourself Now The Rage

All of this home-care-and-repair and do-it-yourself business we hear so much about nowadays has a lot of reason back of it. Briefly, we are obliged to take care of our homes because new homes cost so much.

Of course, it is getting to be almost old-fashioned to talk about the high costs of building. We have been talking about that ever since World War II and costs still show no signs of going down. So it is interesting to run across some reasons for this situation.

Taxes are a big item, says an expert, Myron L. Matthews of the Dow Service building reports of New York. He cites an average size house selling with its land for about $17,225 and finds that taxes account for $1,854 of that cost.

Combine Knife Box And Bulletin Board

A combination knife box and bulletin board is easy to make by screwing a cigar box to a piece of plywood.

Bore two holes in the plywood for hanging. Cut lights in the cigar box to hold the knives.

Finish with two coats of white shellac enamel, allowing one hour between coats.

Sand lightly, dust and coat with a good paste wax.

Continuous Facelifting Of Ammo Done By Navy At Mare Island

By HAL BOYLE

VALLEJO, Calif. (P)—Just as a mature woman wisely overhauls her charms from time to time, the U. S. Navy is engaged in the continuous task of facelifting its ammunition too.

This is one of its jobs the public rarely hears about. But ammunition, like most things in this world, often becomes out-of-date or shows the wear-and-tear of age.

Here is the Mare Island shipyard, which next month celebrates the 100th anniversary of its founding by Adm. David G. Farragut, a great depot overhauls the ammunition of the long line of ships that come here to drydock. It is a strange kind of beauty parlor.

The depot, two-thirds of a square mile in area, has 187 buildings 20 miles of railroad tracks and 25 miles of paved roads.

The work is highly skilled and potentially dangerous. A single static spark from a human body could cause a disastrous explosion. Some 8,000 tons of ammunition are stored in underground bunkers — enough to make a baby A-bomb blast.

To prevent the buildup of static electricity the technicians wear "leg irons" that ground them at every step. Visitors check their matches and cigarette lighters at the gate.

"In the last fiscal year the depot produced 5,130 tons of new ammunition and overhauled 22,622 tons of unserviceable ammunition," said Lt. Cmdr. William F. Gabbery.

When ammunition deteriorates so far that it is too dangerous to be broken down and put to new uses, it is taken to sea and dumped.

Nice job—if you can get it, and enjoy ocean cruising. Bound to give a man something to worry about besides seasickness.

POMEROY (P)—Meigs County Commissioner Roy Proffitt, 40, yesterday was charged with shooting with intent to kill and held for the grand jury under $1,000 bond. He pleaded innocent and waived preliminary examination.

He is accused of shooting his former son-in-law, Grover Calvert, 29, during an argument last Saturday over Calvert's visitation rights to see his child, now living in Proffitt's home with the mother. Calvert, shot in the right side, is in serious condition at St. Joseph's Hospital in Parkersburg, W. Va.

Express Bus Driver Gives Up

INDIANAPOLIS (P)—The bus was plainly marked "North Meridian Express," but passengers kept buzzing to get off at near North Side stops.

Each time the driver sighed and stopped, explaining patiently, "This is an express bus."

At 20th Street, he stopped, turned to the passengers and announced, "I guess this is as good a time as any to quit." He picked up his coin changer and walked off the bus, leaving the astounded passengers to change to later buses.

Indianapolis Transit System said the driver quit because he was "fed up." His name wasn't announced.

This has been one of the most constructive jobs in recent years and has won Herbert Hoover, Jr.,

great acclaim. Because of its success, he was asked to take General Walter Bedell Smith's job as Under Secretary of State. Hoover was reluctant to leave engineering and private life but he was prevailed upon to undertake one of the most difficult tasks in these troubled times and at the seat of most of the trouble.

Not new to Washington or without knowledge of the nature of intrigue and empire-building in the State Department, he is likely to prove a fairly tough taskmaster and to be antagonistic to Left Wing groups, particularly Communists in the Department. I have known him for many years and can attest to a toughness of mind that goes to the center of a problem and having reached a decision fights for what he believes to be right without fear or favor. It will be interesting to see how that works out in the State Department.

SQUARE...

That's All The Railroads Ask !

Railroads pay their own bills. They buy their own rights of way, build and maintain their own tracks and stations, their own signaling systems and safety devices. The three forms of commercial transportation—the big trucks, air lines and water carriers—have a different system. They use highways, airports, waterways, signaling systems, safety devices, etc., which are primarily built and maintained by federal, state and municipal funds — from your tax dollars.

This is not a fair and square system. It is unfair to you, the taxpayer, because part of the tax on the income you earn is being used to assist private business.

It is unfair to the railroads, because they are forced to compete on an unequal basis. And it is even unfair to the big trucks, air lines, and water carriers, because they are being encouraged in an attitude of relying on government funds and facilities to help them in the operation of their private businesses.

It's time other forms of commercial transportation joined the railroads in standing on their own two feet . . . in paying their own way, all the way, all the time.

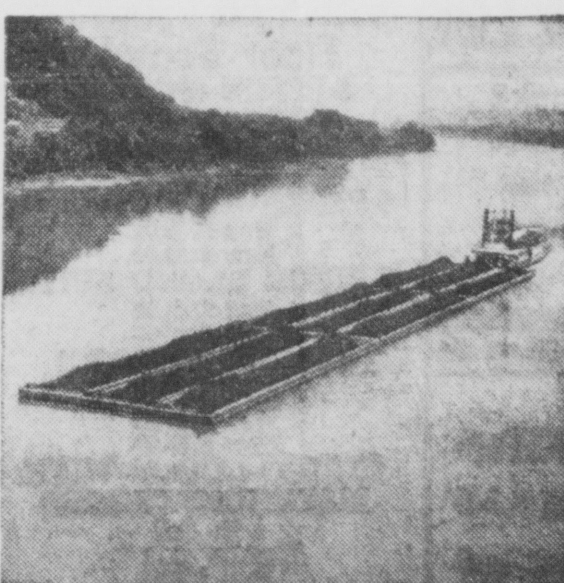

That's the fair and square way.

To build and maintain highways used by the big trucks costs $5 billion a year. The private motorist, farmer and light truck operator pay the biggest part of the bill.

Through 1953, the federal government alone had spent more than $2 billion in tax dollars on construction of civil airports and airways.

At the end of last year, 4.3 billion taxpayer dollars had been spent by Uncle Sam for river and harbor transportation facilities used by private carriers.

But the railroads operate year in and year out, buying, maintaining and constantly improving their facilities and do not receive subsidy in any form.

of a feeling of the erosion of money than a change in the prices of haircuts and hotel rooms.

Somewhere in my youth I got the idea that a quarter was the proper price for a haircut, and that by an eternal law of nature hotel rooms would rent for $2 a night forever.

But today in some big American cities it costs $2-a-day-up to park your pet pooch in a dogtel. This week I got a haircut in San Francisco. The price was $1.50 and I don't have enough hair left to cause the barber to work up a sweat while mowing it. Actually, he could have done the job with a pair of fingernail clippers.

"Down in Los Angeles they are talking of putting the price up to $2," the Frisco barber said. Somehow that made me feel older than the loss of my first wisdom tooth—the thought that a 1954 haircut might rise to the price of a 1930 hotel room.

Whatever happened to the value of a quarter anyway? Will it soon merely be a collector's item, like the buffalo nickel? You can still impress a bellhop with a two-bit tip, but the impression he gets is that you are a two-bit cheapskate.

A panhandler stopped me here the other day and asked me, "Brother, can you spare a quarter for a bowl of soup?"

I gave him the quarter. He took it fidgeted a moment, and said: "You know there's a penny tax, too?"

DETROIT (AP)—Workmen cleaned out a wishing well at the Detroit Institute of Arts yesterday and found $1,206.07 in small change.

The money will be used to purchase new exhibits for the museum.

County Chieftain Bound To Jury

POMEROY (AP)—Meigs County Commissioner Roy Proffitt, 40, yesterday was charged with shooting with intent to kill and held for the grand jury under $1,000 bond. He pleaded innocent and waived preliminary examination.

He is accused of shooting his former son-in-law, Grover Calvert, 29, during an argument last Saturday over Calvert's visitation rights to see his child, now living in Proffitt's home with the mother. Calvert, shot in the right side, is in serious condition at St. Joseph's Hospital in Parkersburg, W. Va.

Express Bus Driver Gives Up

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The bus was plainly marked "North Meridian Express," but passengers kept buzzing to get off at near North Side stops.

Each time the driver sighed and stopped, explaining patiently, "This is an express bus."

At 20th Street, he stopped, turned to the passengers and announced, "I guess this is as good a time as any to quit." He picked up his coin changer and walked off the bus, leaving the astounded passengers to change to later buses.

Indianapolis Transit System said the driver quit because he was "fed up." His name wasn't announced.

It's Heap Big Chief Lausche Now

COLUMBUS (AP)—Just call him Heap Big Chief Frank Lausche.

The governor is an honorary member of the Ogalala Sioux Indian Tribe of the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota.

Chief William Redfox presented Lausche with a headdress and adopted him as a blood brother in a ceremony in the governor's office yesterday.

Redfox is the son of Chief Black Eagle and a nephew of Chief Crazy Horse. Those two chiefs took part in the Battle of the Little Big Horn in which Gen. Custer and his troops died. Redfox recalled that the late Gov. George White of Ohio also was an honorary member of the tribe.

Sokolsky's These Days

The consortium of the Iranian Government and American, British and Dutch companies was established which will operate the Iranian company; a market for Iranian oil will be established by the other companies producing sufficiently less oil to makeroom for Iran; the Iranian Government will receive nearly 10 times as much revenue as it got when the British operated the business; Iranian sovereignty is unimpaired; British prestige is not damaged arew.

This has been one of the most constructive jobs in recent years and has won Herbert Hoover, Jr.,

great acclaim. Because of its success, he was asked to take General Walter Bedell Smith's job as Under Secretary of State. Hoover was reluctant to leave engineering and a private life but he was prevailed upon to undertake one of the most difficult tasks in these troubled times and at the seat of most of the trouble.

Not new to Washington or without knowledge of the nature of intrigue and empire-building in the State Department, he is likely to prove a fairly tough taskmaster and to be antagonistic to Left Wing groups, particularly Communists in the Department. I have known him for many years and can attest to a toughness of mind that goes to the center of a problem and having reached a decision fights for what he believes to be right without fear or favor. It will be interesting to see how that works out in the State Department.

Blackmailer Held

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Heights authorities yesterday filed a blackmail charge against James Lett, 37, who police say admitted he tried to extort money from Kay M. Halle, radio news commentator and department store heiress.

Fair and

SQUARE...

That's All The Railroads Ask !

Railroads pay their own bills.

They buy their own rights of way, build and maintain their own tracks and stations, their own signaling systems and safety devices.

The three forms of commercial transportation—the big trucks, air lines and water carriers—have a different system. They use highways, airports, waterways, signaling systems, safety devices, etc., which are primarily built and maintained by federal, state and municipal funds — from your tax dollars.

This is not a fair and square system.

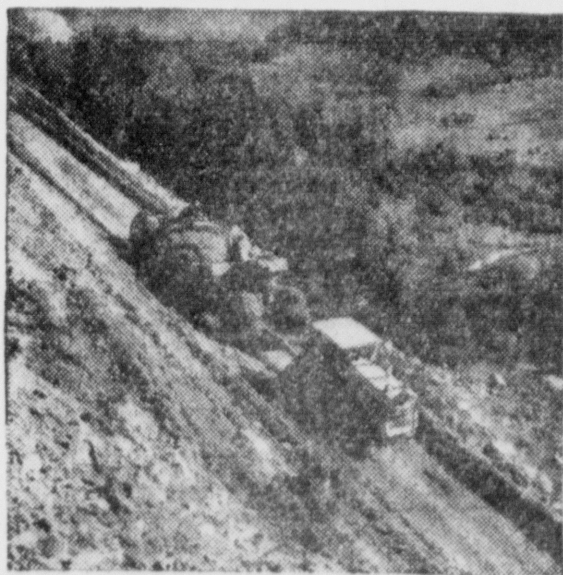

It is unfair to you, the taxpayer, because part of the tax on the income you earn is being used to assist private business.

It is unfair to the railroads, because they are forced to compete on an unequal basis.

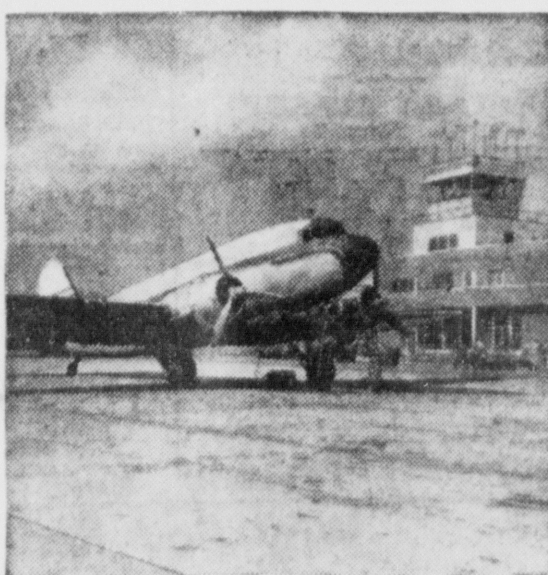

And it is even unfair to the big trucks, air lines, and water carriers, because they are being encouraged in an attitude of relying on government funds and facilities to help them in the operation of their private businesses.

It's time other forms of commercial transportation joined the railroads in standing on their own two feet . . . in paying their own way, all the way, all the time.

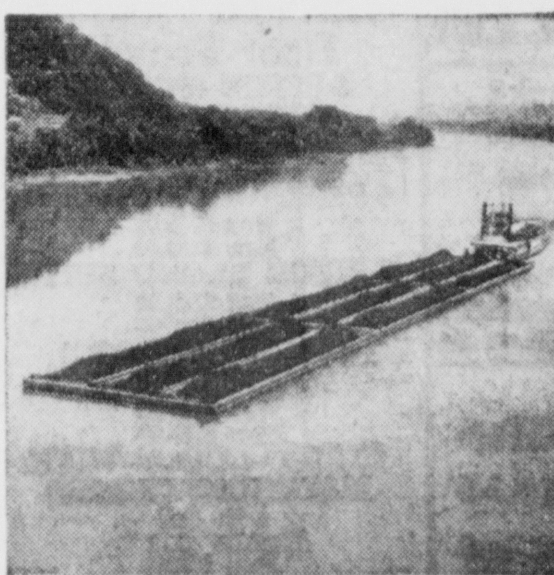

That's the fair and square way.

To build and maintain highways used by the big trucks costs $5 billion a year. The private motorist, farmer and light truck operator pay the biggest part of the bill.

Through 1953, the federal government alone had spent more than $2 billion in tax dollars on construction of civil airports and airways.

At the end of last year, 4.3 billion taxpayer dollars had been spent by Uncle Sam for river and harbor transportation facilities used by private carriers.

But the railroads operate year in and year out, buying, maintaining and constantly improving their facilities and do not receive subsidy in any form.

4 Major Bills Give Backing To Ike's Economy Program

Editor's Note: Following is another in a series of articles telling what Congress actually accomplished with reference to President Eisenhower's requests during the just-adjourned session.

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — With four solid chunks of legislation, Congress has put a foundation under the economic program that President Eisenhower stands for; one in which private industry, not big government, is intended to create the jobs and payrolls.

The four were the tax, farm, housing and atomic bills. All were geared to the philosophy of whittling down Washington's role as the central fountainhead of economic supports and controls.

A fifth measure, the broadening of social security, was evidence that the administration hopes to preserve and strengthen that program achieved under 20 years of Democratic rule.

There was a sixth item, which might be fully as significant as the others. It is something Congress didn't do.

It didn't rush to turn on the money pumps when the country's record-breaking prosperity began to ebb.

But, in the view of many economists, Congress left the government's operations still mildly inflationary. The spending program that Eisenhower proposed, and Congress largely approved, figures to outrun tax collections.

Some officials believe the federal deficit next June 30 will be closer to five billion dollars than the $2,900,000,000 officially forecast.

The economic philosophy developed by Congress and the administration held that government should remove needless controls, encourage business to expand and leave enough profit after taxes so that industry will build new plants, develop new processes and products and create new payrolls.

This was the kind of thinking behind the tax legislation, the decision to invite peacetime industry into atomic power, to ease rigid farm price supports and to give private enterprise the chief responsibility for providing a million or more new homes a year.

The Eisenhower program steered close enough to the middle of the road to win some Democratic support in many cases. But there were Democrats who criticized much of the program as being slanted in favor of big business.

By the time the session ended, the Democrats had laid up quite a lot of ammunition to shoot at Republican candidates in November. It may be effective if the GOP-anticipated upturn in business fails to materialize.

Democrats critical of the Eisenhower program argued that the way to boost production and employment is to strengthen consumer buying power.

They fought unsuccessfully for across-the-board tax relief in the lower income brackets. They also backed high, rigid crop price supports.

In more detail, the major economic measures produced by the session were these:

TAX REVISION

The greatest achievement of the 83rd Congress, in administration eyes, is the massive tax revision bill.

In actual savings to businessmen and wage earners—a $1,363,000,000 reduction in the first year and more later—the law does not compare in impact with the five-billion dollar slash in income and corporate taxes Jan. 1.

But Eisenhower calls it the "keystone" of his program because of its potential stimulus to production and employment — by encouragement of investment, new plant construction and incentive to large industrial payrolls.

The law had many critics. There were contentions that it was loaded in favor of business and gave relatively little help to the average wage earner.

A Democratic amendment to increase personal income tax exemptions by $100 or $200—which would have excused millions from paying at all gained strong support for a time.

Denying that the act unduly favors business, administration officials insist the small taxpayer will reap many benefits. The law gives relief to families hit by heavy medical costs, working mothers who must pay for child care, retired persons living on pensions, parents whose children are helping to earn their college educations, stockholders are excused from all tax on the first $50 of dividends paid them. Four per cent of any additional dividend income may be deducted from the tax payment.

Officials expect this provision to induce great investment in common stocks and provide more capital for industry.

THE HOUSING LAW

In the Housing Act of 1954, Eisenhower got a big bill which, some housing experts believe, may jog home builders into building 1,400,000 new homes in 1955. That would be the biggest year in history.

The law puts home ownership on a 5 per cent down and 30-years-to-pay basis. It thus reaches out to lower, but much broader, levels of buying power.

The act also will make it easier to sell used houses. The terms are 10 per cent down and 30 years to pay on modest dwellings, instead of 20 per cent and 20 years of payment. This feature is expected to encourage many growing families to sell their small homes and move into new and larger ones.

Government officials expect no housing miracles. They will be fairly happy if housing activity remains close to its present rate of about 1,100,000 homes a year. They would not be surprised, however, if the new law stimulates the industry to eclipse the 1950 record of 1,395,000 new homes started.

Their chief concern is that the program, which falls short of the complete package which Eisenhower requested, will not accomplish a second intended goal—the clearance of slums and the redevelopment of the blighted centers of many American cities.

The President had proposed that families who were moved out of redevelopment areas be given FHA assistance in obtaining small homes with a nominal down payment and 40 years to retire the mortgage. Instead, Congress put a 30-year limit on the mortgages and called for a 5 per cent down payment on such low-income housing.

ic materials to the government; and to obtain patents on their own atomic inventions within certain limits. It also permits freer exchange of atomic information with Allies.

The bill became a battleground for the hottest and longest debate of the session. It was on the issue of private vs. public power. Friends of public power tried to amend the bill to prevent the Atomic Energy Commission from contracting with a private utility combine for power which would be fed into the Tennessee Valley Authority system—instead of letting TVA build the generators itself.

The power purchase plan had been ordered by Eisenhower personally.

After 169 hours of debate and filibuster, the administration forces won, on the TVA issue. But the friends of public power gained many concessions. For instance:

1. The AEC was authorized to go into the electric power business itself, selling energy from its atomic reactors.

2. Public bodies and rural electrical cooperatives were given priority in the purchase of any power produced by AEC, and were given priority as well in applying for licenses to build and operate atomic power plants.

State To Honor Junior Fair's 25th Birthday

D. Robert Jones

"The year 1954 marks important anniversaries in the history of Ohio State fairs—the 100th Ohio State Fair and the 25th Ohio State Junior Fair," D. Robert Jones, assistant farm manager, points out in inviting young people and their parents to set aside the week of Aug. 27-Sept. 3 for a visit to the annual exposition in Columbus.

"The Ohio State Fair was the first state fair in the country to establish a place for young people by the addition of a Junior Fair in 1929. Five years previously at the Ashley Independent Agricultural Society in Ashley, Delaware County, the first Junior Fair had been held, making it possible for Ohio to claim double honors in opening up fair honors and competitions to its young folks."

The Junior Fair division has also become one of the top features of the Pickaway County Fair, which will open here at the fairgrounds on Sept. 15.

Meanwhile, in preparation for the state fair, members of the Junior Division Fair Board have received their certificates of appointment from Gov. Frank J. Lausche. They will be responsible for exhibits and activities at the Junior Fair in the big program at Columbus.

Included in the group named for board membership was Harley De-ment of Mt. Sterling.

Del Ennis is the only member of the Phillips who was born in Philadelphia.

ATOMIC ENERGY

The atomic energy bill opened to private enterprise the glowing—if still somewhat remote—promise of a brand new industry, new payrolls and a promising new source of electric power for industry.

The act broke the government's monopoly on atomic energy by permitting private firms to own atomic reactors, which will be the "furnaces" for generating electric power; to own and use nuclear materials; to sell by-product atomic materials to the government; and to obtain patents on their own atomic inventions within certain limits. It also permits freer exchange of atomic information with Allies.

Hospital-Bound Pair Is Killed

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A husband and his young wife, on their way to a hospital where she was to give birth to a child, were trapped in the wreckage of their pickup truck yesterday and burned to death.

State Trooper R. L. Casey said the truck collided with another pickup, turned over and caught fire. The dead were Harold Legg, 25, and his 23-year-old wife, of Zela.

Casey said the driver of the other pickup, George Keeney of Witcher, had been charged with negligent homicide.

4 Major Bills Give Backing To Eisenhower's Economy Program

Editor's Note: Following is another in a series of articles telling what Congress actually accomplished with reference to President Eisenhower's requests during the just-adjourned session.

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — With four solid chunks of legislation, Congress has put a foundation under the economic program that President Eisenhower stands for: one in which private industry, not government, is intended to create the jobs and payrolls.

The four were the tax, farm, housing and atomic bills. All were geared to the philosophy of whittling down Washington's role as the central fountainhead of economic supports and controls.

A fifth measure, the broadening of social security, was evidence that the administration hopes to preserve and strengthen that program achieved under 20 years of Democratic rule.

There was a sixth item, which might be fully as significant as the others. It is something Congress didn't do.

It didn't rush to turn on the money pumps when the country's record-breaking prosperity began to ebb.

But, in the view of many economists, Congress left the government's operations still mildly inflationary. The spending program that Eisenhower proposed, and Congress largely approved, figures to outrun tax collections.

Some officials believe the federal deficit next June 30 will be closer to five billion dollars than the $2,900,000,000 officially forecast.

The economic philosophy developed by Congress and the administration held that government should remove needless controls, encourage business to expand and leave enough profit after taxes so that industry will build new plants, develop new processes and products and create new payrolls.

This was the kind of thinking behind the tax legislation, the decision to invite peacetime industry into atomic power, to ease rigid farm price supports and to give private enterprise the chief responsibility for providing a million or more new homes a year.

The Eisenhower program steered close enough to the middle of the road to win some Democratic support in many cases. But there were Democrats who criticized much of the program as being slanted in favor of big business.

By the time the session ended, the Democrats had laid up quite a lot of ammunition to shoot at Republican candidates in November. It may be effective if the GOP anticipated upturn in business fails to materialize.

Democrats critical of the Eisenhower program argued that the way to boost production and employment is to strengthen consumer buying power.

They fought unsuccessfully for across-the-board tax relief in the lower income brackets. They also backed high, rigid crop price supports.

In more detail, the major economic measures produced by the session were these:

TAX REVISION

The greatest achievement of the 83rd Congress, in administration eyes, is the massive tax revision bill.

In actual savings to businessmen and wage earners—a $1,363,000,000 reduction in the first year and more later—the law does not compare in impact with the five-billion dollar slash in income and corporate taxes Jan. 1.

But Eisenhower calls it the "keystone" of his program because of its potential stimulus to production and employment — by encouragement of investment, new plant construction and incentive to large industrial payrolls.

The law had many critics. There were contentions that it was loaded in favor of business and gave relatively little help to the average wage earner.

A Democratic amendment to increase personal income tax exemptions by $100 or $200—which would have excused millions from paying at all gained strong support for a time.

Denying that the act unduly favors business, administration officials insist the small taxpayer will reap many benefits. The law gives relief to families hit by heavy medical costs, working mothers who must pay for child care, retired persons living on pensions, parents whose children are helping to earn their college educations, stockholders are excused from all tax on the first $50 of dividends paid them. Four per cent of any additional dividend income may be deducted from the tax payment.

Officials expect this provision to induce great investment in common stocks and provide more capital for industry.

THE HOUSING LAW

In the Housing Act of 1954, Eisenhower got a big bill which, some housing experts believe, may jog home builders into building 1,400,000 new homes in 1955. That would be the biggest year in history.

The law puts home ownership on a 5 per cent down and 30-years-to-pay basis. It thus reaches out to lower, but much broader, levels of buying power.

The act also will make it easier to sell used houses. The terms are 10 per cent down and 30 years to pay on modest dwellings, instead of 20 per cent and 20 years of payment. This feature is expected to encourage many growing families to sell their small homes and move into new and larger ones.

Government officials expect no housing miracles. They will be fairly happy if housing activity remains close to its present rate of about 1,100,000 homes a year. They would not be surprised, however, if the new law stimulates the industry to eclipse the 1950 record of 1,395,000 new homes started.

Their chief concern is that the program, which falls short of the complete package which Eisenhower requested, will not accomplish a second intended goal—the clearance of slums and the redevelopment of the blighted centers of many American cities.

The President had proposed that families who were moved out of redevelopment areas be given FHA assistance in obtaining small homes with a nominal down payment and 40 years to retire the mortgage. Instead, Congress put a 30-year limit on the mortgages and called for a 5 per cent down payment on such low-income housing.

THE FARM PROGRAM

In winning enactment of a program of "flexible" crop price supports, the administration scored a substantial victory.

Rigid 90 per cent price supports on major farm products—Cotton, wheat, corn, peanuts and rice—were scuttled in favor of adjustable supports ranging from 82½ to 90 per cent.

With the new law the administration hopes to discourage the production of huge surpluses and begin working off some of the 614 billion dollars worth of farm products held in government storage.

Foes of the change protested that any further drop in the long-declining income of farmers would be disastrous in many areas and, in a time of economic uncertainty, would help push the whole country into depression.

As a compromise, Congress rejected the idea of making supports flexible down to 75 per cent of parity, as Eisenhower and Agriculture Secretary Benson recommended.

ATOMIC ENERGY

The atomic energy bill opened to private enterprise the glowing—if still somewhat remote—promise of a brand new industry, new payrolls and a promising new source of electric power for industry.

The act broke the government's monopoly on atomic energy by permitting private firms to own atomic reactors, which will be the "furnaces" for generating electric power; to own and use nuclear materials; to sell by-product atomic materials to the government; and to obtain patents on their own atomic inventions within certain limits. It also permits freer exchange of atomic information with Allies.

The bill became a battleground for the hottest and longest debate of the session. It was on the issue of private vs. public power. Friends of public power tried to amend the bill to prevent the Atomic Energy Commission from contracting with a private utility combine for power which would be fed into the Tennessee Valley Authority system—instead of letting TVA build the generators itself.

The power purchase plan had been ordered by Eisenhower personally. After 169 hours of debate and filibuster, the administration forces won, on the TVA issue. But the friends of public power gained many concessions. For instance:

1. The AEC was authorized to go into the electric power business itself, selling energy from its atomic reactors.

2. Public bodies and rural electrical cooperatives were given priority in the purchase of any power produced by AEC, and were given priority as well in applying for licenses to build and operate atomic power plants.

State To Honor Junior Fair's 25th Birthday

D. Robert Jones

"The year 1954 marks important anniversaries in the history of Ohio State fairs—the 100th Ohio State Fair and the 25th Ohio State Junior Fair," D. Robert Jones, assistant fair manager, points out in inviting young people and their parents to set aside the week of Aug. 27-Sept. 3 for a visit to the annual exposition in Columbus.

"The Ohio State Fair was the first state fair in the country to establish a place for young people by the addition of a Junior Fair in 1929. Five years previously at the Ashley Independent Agricultural Society in Ashley, Delaware County, the first Junior Fair had been held, making it possible for Ohio to claim double honors in opening up fair honors and competitions to its young folks."

The Junior Fair division has also become one of the top features of the Pickaway County Fair, which will open here at the fairgrounds on Sept. 15.

Meanwhile, in preparation for the state fair, members of the Junior Division Fair Board have received their certificates of appointment from Gov. Frank J. Lausche. They will be responsible for exhibits and activities at the Junior Fair in the big program at Columbus.

Included in the group named for board membership was Harley De met of Mt. Sterling.

Del Ennis is the only member of the Phillies who was born in Philadelphia.

Hospital-Bound Pair Is Killed

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A husband and his young wife, on their way to a hospital where she was to give birth to a child, were trapped in the wreckage of their pickup truck yesterday and burned to death.

State Trooper R. L. Casey said the truck collided with another pickup, turned over and caught fire. The dead were Harold Legg, 25, and his 23-year-old wife, of Zela.

Casey said the driver of the other pickup, George Keeney of Witcher, had been charged with negligent homicide.

Fire Hazards Not Great Here

City Fire Chief OK's Conditions As Improved

More Inspections Needed In General; No Men Available

Circleville Fire Chief Talmer here declared that "conditions here are not too bad" concerning fire hazards in commercial and residential buildings.

Chief Wise said, however, that he cannot make more than about two inspections a year because of the lack of manpower in his department. He added that he would like to make more inspections.

"Fire hazard conditions have improved quite a bit here in the last few years," the chief said. "I believe things are in pretty good shape now."

Nursing and rest homes in the area are complying fully with the law in this respect, chief Wise noted. He explained that these homes are subject to rigid inspection before they are issued a license to operate.

THE NATIONAL BOARD of Fire Underwriters announced a new edition of its "Suggested Ordinance on Nursing, Convalescent and Old Age Homes". The revision brings up to date the suggested ordinance first published by the Board in 1945.

"Within the last 10 years, four of the most tragic fires in nursing and old age homes took the lives of 88 persons," the Board points out.

The record, according to the Board, shows that the loss of life in those and many other fires in similar homes resulted from several causes, the most important of which were the use of highly combustible fibreglass on interior walls and ceilings, unenclosed stairs and dumbwaiters, lack of sufficient exits, inadequate fire separation for parts of buildings containing special fire hazards, and lack of automatic sprinkler protection.

The 1945 suggested ordinance has been adopted in a number of places and a number of states have in recent years adopted regulations providing for fire safety in nursing, convalescent and old age homes. Serious fires have continued to occur, indicating the need for their more widespread regulation from the standpoint of fire safety.

"Some nursing, convalescent and old age homes have modern buildings of fire-resistant construction," the Board states, "but a great many existing homes are in buildings of combustible construction. Many of them are in buildings originally built for use as private dwellings."

"LARGE MANSION-TYPE residences seem to provide just the facility that the managements think are needed for occupancies of this kind and the common availability of such large old residences forms a strong inducement at the conversion of them to such use."

Large wooden frame dwellings of two or three stories in height provide reasonable fire safety when occupied by a single family. But when the dwellings are used for housing with as many persons as can readily be contained in them when converted to nursing, convalescent or old age home occupancy, the hazard to life from fire is greatly increased, the Board pointed out.

"This is because of the larger number of persons subject at any one time to danger from any fire that occurs," the Board explains. "and because the occupants of these homes frequently are not able to get out as readily as the members of a single family, and because the chances of fire increase as the number of occupants increases in any given space."

Chief Wise said he felt, however, that conditions of these types of dwellings in the area were abiding by fire regulations as much as possible.

Mail Truck Drivers To Get Training

Mail truck drivers—as important in getting the mail through on time as the foot-slogging letter carrier—are in for a four-day session on traffic safety in Columbus.

Floyd Seymour will leave here next Sunday as representative of the Circleville postal branch.

The U. S. Post Office Department, with the cooperation of the American Automobile Association and its Ohio affiliate, is sponsoring a training course for four days starting next Monday. Mail truck drivers from 31 Ohio post offices will participate.

District Youth With Forestry Study Group

Sixty teen-agers from 35 Ohio counties, including a Circleville youth, are studying various phases of forestry and conservation this week at the fourth annual training camp of the Ohio Forestry Association.

Bill Barthelmas Jr., son of William Barthelmas Sr., of Circleville Route 2, is the Pickaway County representative.

For the first time the camp is co-educational; nine girls and fifty-one boys are registered. The week's sessions are at Camp Ohio, near Utica in northern Licking County. Camp Director is Roy McKinley, principal of the Coshocton High School. He is being assisted by six professional foresters.

THE OHIO Department of Soils and the Soil Conservation Service have planned demonstrations of land judging and land use for early in the week-long program. Class periods and laboratory work will be varied by a field trip on Friday to the U. S. Hydrological Experiment Station at Coshocton, and to the Wagers Brothers' sawmill at Clark.

"This training camp is one of the most forward-looking of the OFA's activities," said Dr. K. Starr Chester, President of the Association. "We hope to capture the imagination of future landowners and to point out vividly to them the importance to the state of good forestry and all the conservation measures which are so closely allied with it."

Flattop Slated For New Armour

BREMERTON, Wash. (P)—Workers were stripping seven million pounds of armor from the 45,000-ton aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt today, preparing to give the FDR a new suit of armor.

The Navy said, without giving details, that a new type antitorpedo blister to be installed around the FDR's hull possibly will make less armor necessary.

83 New Rules Given Police

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (P)—City Manager Robert E. Layton wants policemen here to keep their feet on the ground. He ordered officers in police cruisers to stop using the dashboards of the cars as foot rests.

Since becoming city manager, Layton has issued 83 new rules and regulations for the police department.

Among other things, he banned "mooching" of food and drinks from stores and restaurants. Along with a "dress up" order he furnished police headquarters with a large mirror.

To forestall any headaches from all the new regulations, Layton directed the chief of police to keep aspirin available at all times.

Fire Hazards Not Great Here

City Fire Chief OK's Conditions As Improved

More Inspections Needed In General; No Men Available

Circleville Fire Chief Talmer Wise declared that "conditions here are not too bad" concerning fire hazards in commercial and residential buildings.

Chief Wise said, however, that he cannot make more than about two inspections a year because of the lack of manpower in his department. He added that he would like to make more inspections.

"Fire hazard conditions have improved quite a bit here in the last few years," the chief said. "I believe things are in pretty good shape now."

Nursing and rest homes in the area are complying fully with the law in this respect, chief Wise noted. He explained that these homes are subject to rigid inspection before they are issued a license to operate.

THE NATIONAL BOARD of Fire Underwriters announced a new edition of its "Suggested Ordinance on Nursing, Convalescent and Old Age Homes". The revision brings up to date the suggested ordinance first published by the Board in 1945.

"Within the last 10 years, four of the most tragic fires in nursing and old age homes took the lives of 88 persons," the Board points out.

The record, according to the Board, shows that the loss of life in those and many other fires in similar homes resulted from several causes, the most important of which were the use of highly combustible fibreboard on interior walls and ceilings, unenclosed stairs and dumbwaiters, lack of sufficient exits, inadequate fire separation for parts of buildings containing special fire hazards, and lack of automatic sprinkler protection.

The 1945 suggested ordinance has been adopted in a number of places and a number of states have in recent years adopted regulations providing for fire safety in nursing, convalescent and old age homes. Serious fires have continued to occur, indicating the need for their more widespread regulation from the standpoint of fire safety.

"Some nursing, convalescent and old age homes have modern buildings of fire-resistive construction," the Board states, "but a great many existing homes are in buildings of combustible construction. Many of them are in buildings originally built for use as private dwellings."

"LARGE MANSION-TYPE residences seem to provide just the facility that the managements think are needed for occupancies of this kind and the common availability of such large old residences forms a strong inducement at the conversion of them to such use."

District Youth With Forestry Study Group

Sixty teen-agers from 35 Ohio counties, including a Circleville youth, are studying various phases of forestry and conservation this week at the fourth annual training camp of the Ohio Forestry Association.

Bill Barthelmas Jr., son of William Barthelmas Sr., of Circleville Route 2, is the Pickaway County representative.

For the first time the camp is co-educational; nine girls and fifty-one boys are registered. The week's sessions are at Camp Ohio, near Utica in northern Licking County.

Camp Director is Roy McKinley, principal of the Coshocton High School. He is being assisted by six professional foresters.

THE OHIO Department of Soils and the Soil Conservation Service have planned demonstrations of land judging and land use for early in the week-long program. Class periods and laboratory work will be varied by a field trip on Friday to the U. S. Hydrological Experiment Station at Coshocton, and to the Wagers Brothers' sawmill at Clark.

"This training camp is one of the most forward-looking of the OFA's activities," said Dr. K. Starr Chester, President of the Association. "We hope to capture the imagination of future landowners and to point out vividly to them the importance to the state of good forestry and all the conservation measures which are so closely allied with it."

Flattop Slated For New Armour

BREMERTON, Wash. (P)—Workers were stripping seven million pounds of armor from the 45,000-ton aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt today, preparing to give the FDR a new suit of armor.

The Navy said, without giving details, that a new type antitorpedo blister to be installed around the FDR's hull possibly will make less armor necessary.

83 New Rules Given Police

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (P)—City Manager Robert E. Layton wants policemen here to keep their feet on the ground. He ordered officers in police cruisers to stop using the dashboards of the cars as foot rests.

Since becoming city manager, Layton has issued 83 new rules and regulations for the police department. Among other things, he banned "mooching" of food and drinks from stores and restaurants. Along with a "dress up" order he furnished police headquarters with a large mirror.

To forestall any headaches from all the new regulations, Layton directed the chief of police to keep aspirin available at all times.

Cashier Given Too Much Help

VISALIA, Calif. (P)—To protect them from thieves, this city's theater cashiers are locked—from the outside—in their booths. But the precaution backfired for Robbie Whitfield, 17.

While she sat helpless in her cage a man climbed into her car parked across the street and drove away, ignoring her shouts. Police still are looking for the thief.

D. A. Yates Says:

"KNOW THE FACTS"

WHEN IS THE BEST TIME TO BUY A NEW CAR THE ANSWER IS NOT DIFFICULT. THERE ARE ONLY TWO CLASSES OF BUYERS—ONE THAT WANTS TO KEEP UP WITH THE STYLE AND ONE WHO WANTS GOOD TRANSPORTATION. THE FIRST GROUP BUYS AT THE FIRST OF THE YEAR—THE SECOND GROUP SHOULD BUY AT THE END OF THE YEAR BECAUSE HE DRIVES HIS CAR AN AVERAGE OF FOUR YEARS AND HE GETS A BETTER DEAL BUYING NOW. OF COURSE IN BUYING BUICK HE GETS THE NEW BODY LOOK OF WRAP AROUND WINDSHIELD WHICH ALL CARS WILL HAVE NEXT YEAR.

THE FACTORY IS NOW CONDUCTING A SALES CONTEST IN WHICH THE TOP PRIZE IS A TRIP TO NASSAU. OF THE FORTY DEALERS WITH WHOM WE ARE GROUPED WE ARE NOW IN FIRST PLACE—WE EXPECT TO STAY THERE—SO IF YOU HAVE A GOOD CLEAN CAR TO TRADE—GET OUR PROPOSITION. DRIVE A BUICK AND YOU WILL SEE WHY IT IS THIRD PLACE IN SALES.
